Supervisor to Ask for Legal Opinion on Powers to Set Up a Land Clearance Agency.

St. Louis County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews indorsed today the idea of establishing a land clearance for redevelopment authority in the county, similar to the one in St. Louis, and added that he would seek a legal opinion on the county's powers in this respect.

Matthews's announcement followed a recommendation by the county grand jury Wednesday that a redevelopment agency be formed. A similar recommendation had been made to the County Council nearly a year ago by the County Planning Commission, but no action was taken on it. nission, but no action was About $4,160,000 of this would be loss in St. Louis property tax revenue. The remainder, about $5,450,000, would be state aid funds which the board would be ineligible to receive if the rate dropped to 89 cents. Under the state "foundation" program, school systems which do not levy a rate of at least $1 cannot receive state funds.

Although the increase requested by the board is only 15 cents above the present levy, voters actually will be authorizing an increase of 41 cents. As officials have pointed out, this is an increase of 41 cents over the constitutional level of 89 cents, or a total of $1.30.

McClellan to Pursue In- Immigration Service quiry on Bond Transactions by Uniform

WASHINGTON, April 12

Bond transactions involving

McClellan told reporters the inquiry has produced no evidence thus far of either graft or tax evasion—main points on which it seeks information—but that he hopes to nail that down too when the hearings are resumed Tuesday.

The hearings, which started last Tuesday, were recessed yesterday until next week after two witnesses asked for further time to obtain lawyers.

Two witnesses testified yesterday they had never seen, and knew nothing about, bonds ostensibly bought by Abrams in their names. They were Atillio Musto, head of Attilio Fashions Inc., in Brooklyn and a friend of Abrams, and Jack Schwartz, now of Great Neck, Long Island, N.Y., a former business associate of Abrams.

The purchase totaled $178,000 in Musto's name and $20,000 in Schwartz's. Both said they did not ask Abrams why he made the purchases or what he did with the bonds.

'Already Too Large.'

CHICAGO, April 12 (UP) —
Tony Marino, who went to prison for a holdup murder he says he did not commit, was deported to his native Italy yesterday.

Agents of the Immigration and Naturalization Service seized Marino as he returned to his rooming house after returning from his night job with a Chicago trucking firm. They placed him aboard an Air France plane bound for Milan. The United States Supreme Court recently refused to review Marino's case. He was ordered deported under a statue that makes any crime of moral turpitude committed within five years after entering the courtry grounds for deportation.

Marino, now 49 years old, was convicted of murdering a South Beloit (Ill.) janitor in a holdup April 24, 1925, shortly after arriving from Italy. Then 18, Marino could neither speak nor understand the English language at his trial. He coupled his proposal that "tests of multimegation thermonuclear weapons be stopped" with a comment that the ones this country now has may be "already too large." The AEC has already schedluled a new series of bomb tests in the Pacific, starting late this month. Some of the weapons tested are expected to be "multimegaton" H-bombs.

A megaton is an atomic weaponeer's word for energy equivalent to 1,000,000 tons of TNT. All reports of hydrogen — thermonuclear — explosions have indicated releases above that level.

The committee, studying all aspects of disarmament proposals, was told that there "is no upper limit to the size of bombs that can be made" and "our moral tradition does not permit us to use fuclear weapons whose effect is mass destruction on an indiscriminate scale."

rino could neither speak nor understand the English language at his trial.

The following year immigration officials began their efforts to deport him.

Marino, who learned English during his 25 years in prison, has contended he was innocent of the murder for which he was convicted and that his constitutional rights were violated by the language barrier at the trial. His case was reviewed three times by the United States Supreme Court, twice by the Illinois Supreme Court and three times in circuit court, but the conviction stuck.

Once the United States Supreme Court commented that Illinois appeal procedure had left Marino on a "legal merrygo-round."

Calling his program one of "rational armament," Murray suggested that it be "publicly defined and explained on the highest possible level."

"The realistic purpose of any disarmament plan should include limitations on the number and size of nuclear weapons," Murray said. "However we should not wait for the establishment of an international control agency.

Parliamentary Difficulties Seen Blocking Chance of Salvaging the Entire $3,000,000 Request.

By JAMES DEAKIN

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 12—
Congressional backers of the $3,000,000 federal appropriation for a start on the St. Louis riverfront memorial project will try to salvage at least $2,640,000 in a Senate-House conference, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

Because of parliamentary difwas told today.

Because of parliamentary difficulties, it is considered unlikely the entire sum can be restored when a conference committee meets to iron out differences between a House bill containing the St. Louis request and a Senate measure in which no funds are provided. In the give-and-take bargaining over the conference table, it is possible even less money will be approved for the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial project, informed sources said.

As passed by the House, the supplemental appropriation bill covering various Government activities in the current fiscal year includes a $3,000,000 federal contribution to the cost of preliminary work on the riverfront project.

The House, however, took out a phrase which would have permitted the money "to remain available until expended." This could mean the federal funds would have to be obligated by next June 30, the end of this fiscal year.

Would Be Impossible.

Officials of the National Park Service, which has jurisdiction over the riverfront site, believe it would be impossible to obligate the money by that time. If not obligated, it would revert to the Treasury.

The Senate Appropriations Committee, in a surprise action Tuesday, deleted the entire $3,000,000 from the supplemental bill. The measure probably will come up for Senate action tomorrow or Monday.

If this move is successful, St. Louis would get $2,640,000 for the riverfront project. Believes Pistol Was in Cell.

Believes Pistol Was in Cell. Martin was not searched until after he had been given a oneyear sentence, just as he was being placed in the temporary cell across a corridor from the courtroom. No weapon was found, and Tozer said today he was convinced that Martin had none at the time. The sheriff said he thought Martin obtained the pistol in the cell, where it had been "planted" in advance. The sheriff said today all lockup cells in the courts building are inspected every morning, but nevertheless there are places in them where a gun might be overlooked.

The cells are left open at night, when they are not occupied. A night watchman sees persons coming and going, and today Tozer said he would ask for closer scrutiny of everyone entering the building.

Prisoner's Actions Described.

The sheriff said two other prisoners in the cell told him Martin went immediately to the toilet there and broke a plastic floater ball that is part of the mechanism, apparently planning to throw water at an officer. But he was called out before he had an opportunity to get it ready.

One of the prisoners also said Martin told of having a pistol with him and offered to help the others escape.

Martin pleaded guilty to five charges of grand larceny March 14, but Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh postponed sentencing for investigation of his request for probation. He had been given a one-year workhouse sentence for burglary in 1950 and escaped but surrendered some time later. A six-month sentence for escape was added.

This was the second time that Deputy Slater fired at an escaping prisoner. He shot and wounded William Z, Hyde, Jan. 5, 1955, hitting him once in the back as the man tried to run away, after alighting from the sheriff's bus in front of the city jail.

Later Republican Attorney General Jacob K. Javitz, of New York, in a keynote address said "one of the most shocking lags in housing is in public housing." "We are losing, not gaining ground over slums," Javitz said. "In spite of the vast increase in the gross national product, we are persistently short in discharging our responsibilities for housing to the 25 per cent of American families earning less than $200 a year. In the last six years, federal public housing starts have declined from 48,900 to 19,700 in 1955. Curtailment and restrictions of the program by the Congress has been the major contributing factor."

men riding on a motorcycle nearby was wounded by a aniper.

In the final incident, a hand grenade was hurled through the window of a house at Achiezer, about 13 miles east of Tel Aviv. A man, his wife and their 1½-year-old daughter were injured.

The attacks posed a dilemma for Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion. He has avoided any retalliatory raids by Israel troops for the last four months, ever since Israel offended much of world public opinion by attacking Syrian gun positions overlooking Lake Kinneret (the Sea of Gaillet).

Conelliatory View.

Israeli leaders are said to be particularly anxious to appear conciliatory now that Dag Hammarskjold, U.N. Secretary General, is making his own on-the-spot inquiry into the Middle East crisis.

But popular demand for retaliation is rising rapidly.

East crisis.

But popular demand for retaliation is rising rapidly.

"There is nothing to do but wipe out Gaza, is a statement heard frequently on the streets of Tel Aviv after last night's attacks.

The newspaper Herut, the number two political party, which stands for "preventive war" against the Arabs and has been gaining strength, said: "These attacks should put an end to the illusion that it is possible to defend the country against murderers by operations within Israeli territory. "A country is not defended by the sentries on its borders. It is defended by the readiness of the state, with all its forces, to pay the enemy back sevenfold for every attack on its own soil. "United. Nations absence of the state, with all its forces, to pay the enemy back sevenfold for every attack on its own soil. "United. Nations absence where we have a seven to be a seven to be a seven to be a seven to the seven to be a seven to be The newspaper Herut, the to pay the enemy back sevenfold for every attack on its own soil.

"United Nations observers have not yet issued any statement accusing Egypt of aggression. They are still investigating facts that are as clear as the sun at noonday.

"The only Israeli answer to Nasser should be to transform the war against Israel into a war against the enemy, on the enemy's territory."

Effect of Raids.

Conversations with many ordinary citizens in the last few days show clearly that the terrorist raids have, if anything, hardened the determination of rank and file Israelis to defend every inch of territory of their young country, which celebrates its eighth birthday next Monday.

By the Associated Press.
United States Ambassador Ed-United States Ambassador Edward B. Lawson praised the Israeli people for showing "remarkable restraint during the present crisis . . in the face of marauding gangs that march by night." Departing from his prepared text at a dedication ceremony at Bar Ilan University near Tel Aviv, Lawson expressed "profound admiration for the courage, patience and fortitude so clearly exhibited in this hour of trial."

Norway Refuses to Sell Arms to Israel During Crisis.
OSLO, April 12 (AP)—Norway's Socialist government declared today it would not sell arms to Israel or any other nation in the Middle East in the present tense situation there.

The statement was made in the wake of a campaign by some sections of the press for sale of 33 obsolete Vampire jet or as cosolete vampire jet fighters to Israel for about $430,000. Arbeiderbladet, the Socialist party newspaper, had joined in the campaign. A spokesman said the gov-ernment found no reason to

A spokesman said the government found no reason to change its previous stand on arms sales to the Middle East.

A Foreign Office spokesman declared the question of shipping jets to Israel had been settled last fall. Israel had asked to buy the planes, now mothballed at Norwegian air fields, and ammunition for the 'Vampires' guns.

"At that time the government found itself unable to approve the sale because of the tense situation in the Middle East," the spokesman said.

"The present situation is even more tense, and the Norwegian government has not found reason to change its stand on arms shipments to these areas."

The afternoon newspaper Verdens Gang splashed a streamer headling for the sale of the planes to Israel.

U.S. AGENCY CHARTS RED 'OPINION' DRIVE

Information Group Urges Nation to Prepare Case With Greatest Skill,

WASHINGTON, April 12 (UP) -The United States Advisory Commission on Information today issued a detailed forecast on how the Soviet Union will attempt to win the case of Communism vs. freedom in the court of world opinion."

The commission, established by law to appraise United States international information activities, listed its predictions in a report to Congress.

To combat this anticipated report to Congress.

To combat this anticipated Soviet program the commission urged that the United States prepare and present its case with the greatest possible skill. The commission said the Communists gradually came to realize in 1955 that the contest between the frèe and slave world cannot be settled by war. Instead the Kremlin decided to adopt "zig-zag" tactics. The United States must react to these with "strong affirmative programs" rather than mere defensive tactics, it said.

In the period ahead, the commission report said, the United States can be reasonably certain "the case for Communism will be presented to the court of world opinion in the following ways":

1. It will be "presented with a smile." The truculent and remote figure of Stalin was a major propaganda advantage to the West, and the Reds are now busily repudiating Stalin.

2. The so-called "spirit of Geneva," as a harbinger of a stable peace, will be invoked. One purpose of this will be to weaken the foundations of our defense alliances, particularly NATO, by the attempt to dispel fear of military aggression.

3. There will be more glittering displays in the Communist "showcase" of culture. The aim will be to indicate that the Communist form of government provides not only a high standard of living for the people but results in a higher level of culture and education than is possible under the capitalist system.

4. The Communists will make greater use of front organizasystem.

4. The Communists will make greater use of front organizations, such as Soviet friendship greater use of front organizations, such as Soviet friendship societies.

5. Communist party leaders in many countries will seek political alliances with leftist parties under the slogan "unity of the left." They will do this despite the fact that for many years they have despised the Socialist reformers.

6. They will try to win friends in the free world by offering economic aid in the form of loans. They will exploit to the fullest degree political and economic unrest wherever it may be.

7. A central propaganda
theme will be "peaceful coexistence" and respect for sovereignty. The Communists will endeavor to present their satellites as free and independent countries.

SENATORS TO PUSH CONSTITUTIONAL BAR ON POLL TAX

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) A Senate Judiciary subcon tee decided yesterday to try to get action at this session of Congress on an anti-poll tax amendment to the Constitution

It would forbid collection of the tax as a requirement for voting in federal elections. States could retain it for state and local elections, if they

To speed the hearings, Chairman Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, of the subcommittee called another session for Fri-day and asked Senator William called another session for Friday and asked Senator William Langer (Rep.), North Dakota, to preside. Kefauver is in the midst of his campaign for the Democratic no mination for President.

The only states now requiring a poll tax for voting are Virginia, Alabama, Mississippl, Texas and Arkansas. Several Southern states have repealed their poll tax laws.

A group of southern senators is behind the constitutional amendment approach to the question. They maintain this is the only proper method, as opposed to a simple majority vote in Congress for a federal law. A constitutional amendment would require two-thirds of approval in the House and Senate and ratification by three-fourths of the states. Senate and ratification by three-fourths of the states.

OIL OUTPUT REACHES NEW RECORD, RED BOOST HIGH

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., April 12 (AP)—The United Na-tions says that world oil produc-tion last year made a record in-crease to a new high. It said the tion last year made a record increase to a new high. It said the increase in the Communist sphere was higher proportionately than anywhere else, although it ranked fourth in volume of output.

Its monthly Bulletin of Statistics for April reported the world's output of crude petroleum and natural gasoline rose 11½ per cent to more than 788,000,000 metric tons. The rise was 17.2 per cent for the Soviet Union, eastern Europe and mainland China; 16.8 per cent for the Caribbean, 8.2 for North America, 8.1 for the Far East (excluding Red China), and 7.9 for South America.

Five companies joined the billionaire sales ranks and one dropped out in 1955.

The 33 leaders rang up total sales of more than 90 billion dollars, or almost $550 for each man, woman and child in the United States.

Their sales in 1954—a year of mild recession and belt-tightening for industry—totalled about 70 billion dollars.

The increase last year was sparked by an unparalleled consumer spending spree for new homes, automobiles, appliances, and a long list of other goods and services. Industrial expansion played a key supporting role.

is getting ready to cock a critical eye at the individual income ax returns now pilling up at its 64 district offices.

About 59,000,000 returns are expected to have been filed by Monday midnight, the deadline. After that, a newly strengthened force of 13,600 auditors and intelligence agents will put about 4,000,000 returns, or nearly twice the usual number, under exhaustive examination. All 59,000,000 returns will be checked for arithmetical errors. Several general rules are likely to be followed in selecting the 4,000,000 returns for close scrutiny.

Anyone reporting income of more than $25,000 will almost inevitably get the full treatment. On a spot-check basis, returns showing income of $10,000 to $25,000 will get equally close attention.

Samples of the rest will be examined for deductions and personal exemptions, on which the taxpayer is most likely to stumble either by ignorance or design.

RUSSIA USING SCIENTISTS AS EMBASSY ATTACHES

STOCKHOLM, April 12 (AP)
—The Soviet Union has a new system of catching up with Western science. Soviet scientists are being assigned for the first time to embassies in all important capitals, according to diplomatic sources here.

These informants said the Soviet government had placed two scientists, one of them a metallurgist and the other an agricultural expert, at the Soviet embassy in Stockholm.

The last of two American scientific attaches has been withdrawn from the United States embassy here for lack of funds.

AFL-CIO DOCK UNION HITS OU AT TEAMSTERS

Calls on Labor to Act Against Brotherhood for Hoffa Pact With

The New York Times New Service. 1007718th. 1006. 2) in NEW YORK, April 12—The AFI-CIO International Brotherhood of Longshoremen has called on labor to take strong action against the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, an affiliated union.

In a letter released yesterday, E. L. Slaughter, secretary-treasurer of the longshore group, wrote George Meany, president of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, asking for punitive measures against the Teamsters.

The complaint was based on the mutual assistance pact reached by James H. Hoffa of Detroit, an international vice president who is a power in the Teamsters Union, and the International Longshoremen's Association, which was expelled in 1953 from the old AFL on charges of gangster domination. Time for Ultimatum.

"We feel the time has come when the AFL-ClO should give an ultimatum to the International Brotherhood of Teamsters to clean up their organization of the racketeering element and to stop doing business through 'mutual aid pacts' with the ILA, or else expel them from membership," Slaughter wrote.

Asserting that the Teamsters Union had sought to bring both rival longshore unions intis fold, he said that he and Larry Long, president of the International Brotherhood of Longshoremen, had been told by the teamsters:

"We would like to have your international union merge with ILA also. Everything would remain status quo, and the Teamsters then would clean up the questionable elements within the ILA."

Cites 1953 Beck Stand.
Slaughter compared the present situation in the Teamsters Union to that of ILA in 1953, when that union was served with an ultimatum to clean out racketeers or face expulsion. He noted that Dave Beck, president of the Teamsters, "was loud in his criticism against the ILA and voted to expel them from the federation because of non-compliance with the AFL ultimatum.

Beck, Slaughter recalled, was then appointed a trustee of the newly chartered IBL and was to see to it that no gangster elements were receive

He saw Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of the United States, April president of the Council, and later had luncheon with French delegate Herve Alphand, Informed quarters said he would see British delegate Sir Pierson Dixon this afternoon.

The spokesman said Eban had informed Lodge of the Egyptian attacks against Israel and had discussed with him the alleged violation of Israeli territory by Egyptian aircraft.

Altogether Hammars kjold sent the Council copies of six communications. These included letters which he sent from Rome last Sunday to Nasser and Ben-Gurion, their replies to him and his final response to both. The Israeli letter was dated April 9 and the Egyptian letter April 11.

Their pledges referred speletter April 11.

letter April 11.

Their pledges referred specifically to article II, paragraph 2, of the armistice agreement which says, "No element of the land, sea or air military or paramilitary of either party, including non-regular forces, shall commit any warlike or hostile act against the military or paramilitary forces of the other party, or against civilians in territory under the control of that party. "

Ben-Gurion wrote:

CAIRO, April 12 (UP)—Premier Nasser is determined that any agreement reached on easing the tension in the strifetorn Gaza strip must have no political overtones, Egyptian sources said today.

The sources said Nasser intended to steer a noncommittal course in his meetings with United Nations' Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold and truce supervisor Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns.

Nasser's long-standing attitude toward the Palestine problem is that any border pacification efforts should be aimed only at reaching a local settlement, the sources said. Egypt has rejected Israeli attempts in the past to reach a general Middle East settlement.

The Egyptian position is that any settlement must come within bounds of the present truce enforcement machinery, the sources said.

CANTON, Okla, (AP) — In 1938 Rene Heinz, working here with the Oklahoma Highway Department, bought a meal ticket at a cafe.

He didn't have time to use it all up before being shifted to another job. He revisited the cafe recently, pulled out the meal ticket and sort the unused meal ticket and got the unused portion redeemed. Heinz was served by the same waitress who issued it 18 years ago.

Roy Wilkins Suggests Action in North as Protest Against Senator Eastland.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch
Special Pispatch. CHICAGO, April 12 - Roy Vilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told a mass "hour of prayer" meeting here last night prayer" meeting here last night that Negroes in the North might help their brothers in the South by voting Republican.

Wilkins, addressing 5000 persons, most of them Negroes, did not mention political parties by name, but his meaning was unmistakable.

He noted that in the North Negroes could not vote for or against men like Senator James O. Eastland (Dem.), Mississippl, who recently succeeded by seniority, to chairmanship of the powerful Senate Judiciary Committee.

"Up here we can strike a blow in defense of our brothers in the South, if necessary by swapping the known devil for the suspected witch. It could be that the witch, if freed of the political necessity of teaming up with the devil, just might do better by us.

"Certainly, with Eastland on our necks, and with every southern politician yelling that we won't get our rights until doomsday, we cannot be any worse off than we are now."

Cafeteria Where White Man Hit Negro is Reopened.
HOUSTON, Tex., April 12 (UP) — United States District Judge Ben C. Connally stepped in today and suspended his own anti-segregation ruling to reopen a cafeteria closed yesterday after a white oilman punched a Negro attorney for trying to get a cup of coffee. The injunction was against W. M. (Dee) Derrington, owner of a cafeteria in the Harris county courthouse, for refusing to serve Negroes.

Derrington closed the hitherto all-white eating place yesterday after several Negroes attempted to take advantage of Judge Connally's injunction and tried to enter the cafeteria.

In a meles that followed oil-tempted to take advantage of Judge Connally's injunction and tried to enter the cafeteria. In a melee that followed, oilman J. M. Wren, an independent drilling: contractor, hit Negro attorney M. W. Plummer in the face. Plummer did not hit back. Wren was arrested, charged with simple assault, and a hearing was set for May 1.

Derrington closed the cafeteria to everybody — "whites and Negroes alike"—after the fight. He reopened it today after Judge Connally suspended his ruling ordering the courthouse cafeteria to serve Negroes, pending Derrington's appeal to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

ance has hired them back, their union says.

The workers said they were fired when they returned to the Pacific Airmotive Corp. plant after praying for an hour in their automobiles in observance of the Montgomery (Ala.) Negro bus boycott. They were granted full seniority, vacation and sick leave with their reinstatement, a spokesman for the International Association of Machinists said yesterday.

BACK $5337 HELD BY U.S.

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)
—The Daily Worker has filed suit to recover $5337 now being held by the Treasury Department to satisfy a $46,000 income tax lien.

New Press, Inc., publishers of the Communist party newspaper, obtained an order in United States District Court yesterday directing the Government to show cause why it should not be restrained from enforcing the tax lien.

Harry Sacher, attorney for the newspaper, also asked for a permanent injunction against enforcement of the tax lien and for return of the funds held by the Treasury Department since the paper's physical assets were seized March 27.

The Government sclaims the Daily Worker owes income taxes of $6788 for 1951, $35,751 for 1952, and $3508 for 1953. The newspaper contends it has been operating at a deficit for years and owes no taxes.

Ex-Governor, in Miami, Finds Illinois Outcome Encouraging-Primary May 29.

MIAMI, Fla., April 12 (AP)—Adlai Stevenson gave his leisurely hand-shaking campaign technique an important test today in the populous Miami area where almost a fourth of Florida's 1,500,000 registered voters live.

live.

There was an added incentive for a good showing because Estes Kefauver flies in to Florida today to do more hand-shaking and campaigning.

Stevenson and Kefauver are seeking Florida's 28 Democratic convention votes in the only direct clash between the two in the South. The preference primary comes on May 29.

Stevenson said he had never worried about the outcome in Florida and felt he had at least an even chance to carry the state.

Hopes of the Stevenson forces were buoyed by the strong showing he made in the Illinois primary. Kefauver got less than 4 per cent write-in votes and Stevenson's total ran only slightly behind that of President Eisenhower.

In 1952 Gen. Eisenhower finished 443,000 votes ahead of Stevenson in Illinois but Tuesday the President came out about 20,000 votes ahead.

"It (the Illinois vote) has given me new heart and courage," Stevenson said.

(Benmont Tench, Stevenson's Florida campaign manager, told the United Press the Illinois vote boosted Stevenson's chances of winning Florida's votes by "100 per cent.")

Stevenson told a civic luncheon group at Daytona Beach he was hopeful the segregation problem could be worked out.

"It cannot be done with guns and bayonets and it cannot be done overnight," he said. "It can be worked out with the decent concern of whites and Negroes. The South has just as many reasonable people as any section of the country."

Stevenson was asked several times yesterday whether he had any recommendations for aiding the small business man.

He replied that aside from the farmer, the plight of the little business man was probably the nation's biggest economic problem. He said some relief might be extended to them in the fields of taxes and credit.

Bessemer, Tucsaloosa and the Birmingham area were to take part.

Golden said, "Our information is that they had planned to infiltrate the audience, overpower the band, the police, and anyone else who interfered with them. But the expected mob failed to show."

Only six men actually took part in the affray and they have been arrested and charged in connection with it.

Two—W. R. Vinson, 23 years old, and Kenneth Adams, 35, a member of the board of directors of the Anniston Citizens' Council — have been charged with assault with intent to murder, which carries a maximum penalty of two to 20 years.

Four others, charged with conspiracy, are Orliss Clevenger, 18; Mike Fox, 36; E. L. Vinson, 25 and Jesse W. Mabry, 43. All but Mabry are from Anniston.

Asa E. Carter, head of the North Alabama White Citizens' Council, denied his organiza-tion had anything to do with attack.

the attack.

When the men were seized on stage after assaulting Cole, they told officers, all they intended to do was seize the microphone and make some remarks about segregation.

Before the attack they ran down to the stage from the rear of the auditorium. An usher said he heard one of them say, "Let's go get that coon," before they started. After reaching the stage one of the men turned to the crowd and yelled "white trash!"

trash!"
At first Cole, who was in Chicago today, canceled other southern appearances but later announced that he was going to Raleigh, N.C., tomorrow, with other appearances planned in Norfolk and Richmond, Va., Winston-Salem, N.C., Atlanta, Ga., and Louisville.
Cole said he is not interested in bringing any action against the men.

If only because he switched parties, Morse is regarded by orthodox Republicans as a kind of cross between Jack the Ripper and the Loch Ness monster. Mr. Eisenhower's popularity will be thrown heavily into the balance. Researchers are busy digging up the Senator's attacks on the President as ammunition which McKay will use when the battle gets hot. They have come up with some strong language proving, if any proof were needed, that Morse is not one to qualify his criticism. #### Sour Grapes in Wellston

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In regard to the letter signed "Defeated," let me say first, that the poll workers in the Wellston city election were honest and hard-working people. Second, it is ridiculous to say that the election was nonpartisan, when it is a fact that there is a pro-Hayes group and an anti-Hayes group.

Perhaps that is why "Defeated" was defeated. He had nothing to offer except being against the Mayor. Accusing pro-Hayes people of being gangsters and hoods is another example of the "independents" negative approach.

Shell Game on the Levee

It looks very much as if St. Louis is being swindled. Whether administrative bungling or covert obstruction is responsible, the strange course of the riverfront memorial appropriation in Washington leaves little doubt that St. Louis is the victim of a shell game.

The latest episode in this "guess-where-thepea-is" thriller came when the Senate Appropriations Committee killed the $3,000,000 voted by the House-with strings attached-to start removing railroad tracks at the memorial site. The reason given was that a new project of this sort ought not to be financed out of plemental appropriations for the current fiscal year, which are usually intended to continue work on undertakings already started.

That is a most curious excuse. The memorial is not a new project by any means. It has been around now for about 20 years. The United States Government has already invested almost

But consider the strings attached by the House. That body approved the $3,000,000 only on condition that contracts obligating it be signed before June 30. Reason given: that supplemental appropriations must be spent or committed during the fiscal year for which they

Thus the House says to St. Louis: "We'll give you the money if you spend it right away," and the Senate says to St. Louis: "We won't give you the money because if you spent it right away that would be an improper use of this particular fund."

To which St. Louisans can properly reply: "Just what is going on here"?

the least of the mysteries is why the White House ever asked for a supplemental appropriation out of the current year's budget in the first place.

Last February the National Park Service, in response to suggestions from St. Louis Congressmen, Senators and citizens that now was the time for the Federal Government to fulfill commitments on the memorial, announced that it would ask for $150,000 to build a fence around the courthouse. A St. Louis delegation promptly went to Washington to press the case for a much bigger start on spending the $5,000,000 which had been authorized but not ap-

The St. Louis delegation did not insist that fund come out of this year's budget. As a matter of fact the normal procedure, as George H. Hall of our Washington bureau reported at the time, would be to put the appropriation into the regular Interior Department money bill for the 1957 fiscal year starting next July 1. But somehow when the White House made its request for funds it did so in the form which has been rejected by the Senate committee.

Is somebody, either in St. Louis or in Washington, secretly working against the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial? There is no open opposition to it, but the way unexpected obstacles keep popping up is enough to suggest the question.

There may still be a chance to restore the appropriation when the supplemental bill comes to the Senate floor. There may be a better chance to make it a part of the regular 1957 appropriation bill. Since the Administration just asked for more than $500,000,000 in new defense funds on the plea that this can be absorbed without unbalancing the 1957 budget, it can hardly be claimed that $3,000,000 for the riverfront would unbalance it.

We trust that Senators Hennings and Symington and Representatives Curtis, Sullivan, Kar-sten will renew their battle with greater vigor than ever to get action out of Congress at this

Clearing the Criminal Docket

A fourth trial division has finally been opened in the St. Louis Circuit Court for Criminal This ought to be an important step toward implementing the Missouri Constitution's guarantee of a "speedy public trial" to defendants in criminal cases. For some time now the criminal docket has been so crowded-at last count some 755 cases were pending—that the right of a speedy trial has existed only in theory, certainly not in fact. Whether the fourth trial division will cure the problem remains to be seen, but at the very least it is a move in the right direction. Everyone who had a hand in finally creating the new courtroom deserves the

Too Many Tax Campaigns

Is it possible to lessen the frequency of school tax elections in St. Louis? The school system has been compelled to go to the people four times in the last six years. While this has given them an important power over operations, nevertheless it appears to us that four tax campaigns in six years are too many.

The elections were necessary because the Missouri Constitution prohibits the School Board from levying a rate in excess of 89 cents without approval of the people. The Constitu permits a two-year extension of any rate above the maximum on the strength of a simple majority of those voting. But it requires a two-thirds majority for a three- or four-year extension and the Board has understandably shied away from that difficult requirement.

Apart from taking a chance on a two-thirds majority, the Board's best hope of reducing the number of tax elections may be to work for a change in the Constitution. Two avenues of ch are immediately discernible. One is to lift the 89-cent ceiling. The constimaximum was set in 1945 and it represented the actual rate the St. Louis system levied that year; it was established more on the basis of pressure from the real estate lobby than for tricts were permitted to go to $1 without consulting the people. Today, $1 is the minimum levy required to participate in state school aid. Sure the Board should have power to set such a levy at least.

ice 1945, the cost of education has spiraled to heights undreamed of then. In St. Louis in 1945-46 for example, expenditures per pupil ran to $147. Last year they had risen to $306. or slightly more than double.

Another approach to the St. Louis problem to cut the size of the majority needed to approve an over-ceiling rate for four years. A simple majority ought to be sufficient.

The cost of conducting a special election in t. Louis adds up to about $100,000. This comes from the Election Board's budget and ultimately from the taxpayer. In addition the School Board will spend another $35,000 of tax money meeting certain legal requirements connected with the election and explaining the issue.

On top of that, school officials, administrators, teachers, children, parents and friends of the schools spend countless hours on the pre-election campaign. Teachers and children especially could put this time to better use.

All of which suggests that the Board ought to do some serious thinking on this problem ional amendments may be proposed at any time by the Missouri Legislature. If that is the way out for St. Louis, the proposal ought to be ready well in advance of the start of the next General Assembly.

The Farm Bill Defeat

President Eisenhower's defeat on the farm bill presents him with a painful dilemma. His choices are: Sign the bill which he called upon Republican congressmen to reject, in which case difficult to see how Secretary Benson could stay in the Cabinet; or veto the bill and thereby present the Democrats with the farm issue they have so diligently sought to fashion.

On the basis of pure principle, the President would be justified in vetoing the bill. For it contains, not only the soil bank which he proposed for the long-term alleviation of surplus problems, but a number of price-rigging provisions which represent a step backward.

It took Congress a long time to break away from 90 per cent of parity price supports, the dual parity formula and other provisions of the conference bill. Now these would be put into law barely a year after they went out.

So the President has ample theoretical reafor vetoing the bill. If he does so, however, he must face the fact that this will mean immediate and serious loss of farm income this year. For the price-rigging amendments, unsatisfactory as they are in principle, do promise immediate improvement in 1956 farm income, which the soil bank did not.

If the President takes his stand on theory and principle alone, he must be prepared to defend the practical judgment that the farm economy which has already taken quite a few blows can sustain the loss of some two billion dollars in 1956 income which the conference would have provided.

That is an economic issue with obvious political overtones. These latter were so potent that, when the crucial vote came in the House on an amendment to rewrite the bill along Eisenhower-Benson lines, 27 farm-belt Republicans deserted the President.

Had all of them voted the other way, the bill still would have passed in the form opposed by the President. In the Senate, however, the bill could not have passed without the aid of the 15 Republicans who went against the President's Their desertion is a measure of the wishes. political pressures which are bound to be felt in the White House as well.

To veto or sign?

The President soon must decide. If he wanted to play pure politics, he would sign, thereby putting two billion dollars in the farmers' ockets and at the same time in all probability getting rid of Secretary Benson, who is a liability in the farm belt.

How to balance these considerations against those of principle and of practical economic uences is the problem which Congress has laid on the President's desk.

Blackeyed peas cannot possibly be made any better, it seems most likely. Consequently, the admirer of this fine foodstuff must concentrate on hoping that there will be more of them. Par-ticularly is this true when a family-size helping of black-eyed peas is combined with spring on ions, cornbread (with butter and plenty of the pot liquor from the peas) and real churned buttermilk.

Anyone who contributes to the production of more blackeyed peas under those circumstances is a bona fide benefactor of humanity.

Amber Signal on Toll Roads

Some of the nation's newer toll roads face unpredicted trouble, Time magazine reports. The 241-mile Ohio turnpike was expected to bring in $20,000,000 from some 14,000,000 vehicles in its first year, but after six months both traffic and tolls are running at only about half the anticipated rate. The much shorter West Virginia turnpike last year took in not half the revenue it needed to break even. And the 427-mile New York Thruway reports disappointing revenue from truckers, who still find the

"In the rush to superhighways, some roadmen failed to give sufficient consideration to the fact ds will pay only under quite specific conditions," Time says. The profitable Pennsylvania turnpike cut through high mountains; the New Jersey tunnpike cut through unusually Oklahoma's turnpike has done well enough principally because the state had failed to build any good free route to compete with it.

But the unsuspected problems of other toll show that Missouri has been right in going slow on the subject of privately-financed routes in this state are already covered by free roads which are being improved rapidly. And now the House Public Works Committee in Washington has tentatively approved a 25-billion-dollar federal program, which if finally passed would mean that Missouri's major routes would be brought to the best possible traffic standards, and still be free.

Missouri can afford to wait, and along with all other states must hope that this Congress will finally increase the Federal Government share of responsibility for building interstate

For Crippled Children

The Society for Crippled Children, whose Easter appeal for funds was to have ended this week, has extended its 1956 campaign period. It has done so because only about one-third of the goal of $200,000 has been raised through the Easter seals and otherwise. If the campaign is not successful, the society will have no choice but to curtail its services to crippled children in the St. Louis area, according to the chairman of the campaign, Charles E. Claggett. Since few needs are more appealing than the eeds of crippled children, the lag in this campaign ought to be a matter of community con-cern. Is it because St. Louisans have accepted the idea of a United Fund drive? If so this is a matter for the Society of Crippled Children to study over. Meantime thit worthy cause needs help. The mere announcement of the slowdown in contributions ought to be a reminder to the community.

A Victory for the Federal System

The Mirror Public Opinio Supreme Court ruled against conviction of Communist under Pennsylvania sedition law because federal law 'occupies the field,' editorial notes; sedition is crime against the pation; some of many state laws on subject conflict with federal, some are dangerous.

The movement in the states and among some members of Congress to overturn the Supreme Court's decision in the Steve Nelson case seems to us

The court majority, speaking through Chief Justice Warren, concluded that in passing the Smith Act and related statutes Congress intended to "occupy the field" in the control of subversion and, therefore, the Pennsylvania Sedi-

Presumably the decision has cut the

It is well to remember, however, that the court did not restrict the right of the states to protect themselves against subversives and trouble-makers.

What it said in effect is that Congress has acted to safeguard the nation against Communist infiltration and the states must not interfere with that policy by enforcing local laws that may be different in purpose and method.
This is not a new doctrine. The Supreme Court has ruled that in certain aspects of the regulation of interstate commerce and the registration of aliens, the "federal interest is so dominant that the federal system (must) be assumed to preclude enforcement of state laws on the same subject."

In this instance the dominance of the

What the community can do to improve traffic and their transit system—without great expense—was highlighted by John C. Baine, Public Service Co. president, in his message to stockholders in the recent annual report.

This new commission policy was adopted following many months of co-operative civic effort spearheaded by Public Service and leading St. Louis civic and government officials. federal interest is clear. The Constitu-tion assigns the function of defense and national security exclusively to the Fed-national security exclusively to the Federal Government.

Sedition, as the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania said, is peculiarly a crime against the nation. In any well-ordered system it should be punished through the federal courts.
Chief Justice Warren pointed out that some of the state laws are very different from the Smith Act. Florida, for example, makes membership in, or association with, any communistic organization with, any communistic organization.

example, makes membership in, or association with, any communistic organization a felony. The Internal Security Act of 1950 provides specifically that membership in a Communist organization shall not per se constitute a violation of any criminal statute.

The Pennsylvania law that the court upset is also at war with the federal policy, and probably with the Constitution, in that it would punish any conduct tending to subject the Government to contempt. It would be wholly unreasonable to let the states thus override the national policy in matters so intimately associated with the national security.

timately associated with the anticonsecurity.

Nor would the court assume that Congress intended to inflict double punishment on Nelson and others in the same category. Pennsylvania sentenced Nelson, an acknowledged Communist, to imprisonment for 20 years and to a fine of $10,000 plus $13,000 in court costs. On his later conviction in federal court of violating the Smith Act, Nelson was sentenced to five years. The state penalties could not be added to the was sentenced to five years. In each penalties could not be added to the federal without defeating the policies of both governments.

In these circumstances, we think the court's decision tends to uphold the federal system instead of weakening it. The success of any federal system depends upon rendering to the National Government that which is national and unto the local government that which is local.

unto the local government of Congress is local.

When the precise intent of Congress is not stated, the court can scarcely err by assuming that the legislators had this basic principle of the Constitution

The City of St. Louis could increase the community benefits of the park-ride system by assisting in the establishment of additional lots.

"Our community has everything to gain in giving full co-operation to measures that will improve the speed and efficiency with which its citizens can move throughout the metropolitan area. We are confident that the degree of community co-operation for transit will be increased in the days and years shead."

Broadly, the Texas Senator would offer a rallying point for what he calls the "moderates" of the south. Under his leadership they would try to use their influence and their bargaining power at the August convention to pick a nominee and adopt a platform that would hold as much their bargaining power at ful thinking to expect anything like party unity:

But Johnson has great confidence in his own ability at compromise. At that, in fact, he has proved most adept as Senate leader, indeed far too adept for many other Democrats who would like to see the party put up more of a scrap. up more of a scrap.

The Shake to Shivers.

A direct objective of the Johnson favorite-son-delegation-chairman maneuver is to clip the wings of three-times Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas. After participating in the 1952 Democratic convention, Shivers went back home and bolted to Gen. Eiseahower, getting credit for lifting the state over into the Republican column.

lifting the state over into the Republican column.

To thwart Gov. Shivers, who would like to lead another Democratic convention, is the impelling motive of another powerful Texan. This man, in fact, worked out the Johnson-front-man device. He is Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn.

"Mr. Sam," who abhors party deserters, months ago began the missionary work in the precincts to bring about election of enough anti-Shivers delegates to the state convention to encompass the downfall of the 1952 bolter. Precinct conventions will be held May 5.

It was to that "first step in the process that ultimately elects our delegation to the national convention" that Senator Johnson addressed himself in his Tuesday night radio ad-The Dark Horses. Of potential Democratic presidential candidates, it is believed Senator Johnson would lean toward Stevenson. But if the 1952 candidate has been knocked out by the primaries when the convention meets, the Texas Senator might seek a compromise. in his Tuesday night radio address, beamed to Texas.

A Loyalty Pledge.

He announced he would comply with Speaker Rayburn's proposal that he become a candidate for the presidential nomination and for chairman of the state's convention delegation if that "should be the will of the majority of the delegates to the state convention" which will elect delegates to the national convention.

He might find it in a candidate who would be more acceptable to the South than Gov. Averell Harriman of New York or any other northerner, or Senator Estes Kefauver, who, though from Tennessee, finds no real champion among important southern party leaders. For the compromise role, you hear often the name of Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri, who has very cordial relations with southern leaders in the Senate. Though Senator Johnson did not mention Gov. Shivers, he was plainly understood when he said he believed the Texas Senate.

But his candidacy thus far has inspired no real enthusiasm among party leaders representing other sections of the country, where the Democratic party must get the bulk of its votes to win a national election. delegation to this year's con-vention "should abide by the decision of the majority of the convention and return to Texas to work for the election of the nominee." That is what Shivers lid not do four years ago

Dedication of the hospital will be at 4 p.m. Because the building is not completed, attendance will be limited to 250 guests.

Following the dedication ceremony, Cardinal D'Alton will receive guests in the conference room of the chapel wing of the hospital.

At 7 p.m., a dinner in his honor will be held at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson. He will deliver the principal address there.

Johnson in the Race? It generally is accepted that Speaker Rayburn is sure of the outcome of this battle among Texas Democrats. It may be far along in the story to take up a question that probably popped into the mind of the reader at the start, to wit: isn't Senator Johnson really after the presidential nomination for himself and isn't there a good chance for him? That certainly could be in his mind—it is hard to keep it out of any politician's mind. But it generally has been taken for granted that he would not be a candidate because of his heart attack last summer. Herpeatedly has taken that position. But his nomination is not taken seriously here for another reason. This is that he is too much identified with the southern wing of his party. It hardly seems likely that a TENNANT, ANOTHER FORMER SUITOR OF much identified with the south-ern wing of his party. It hardly seems likely that a candidate from the south would be picked this year, though a southerner might be chosen as a vice presidential candidate, as was the case four years ago.

Gambling, exceedingly popular in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, is believed to have given the printmaker's craft its start and is reflected here in engraved cards of an Italian knight, doge and king.

Among unique prints is an anonymous woodcut, "Madonna and Child," made at Ulm, Germany, about 1450 and colored in red and pale yellow by hand. Like many of the religious prints shown, it is rich in symbolic imagery from both Old and New Testaments.

Possibly 20 years older is another anonymous woodcut, not unique, "Agony in the Garden," from the upper Rhine valley. This print repeats with surprising accuracy the design of a painting by the Master of Wittengau, who flourished in the late 1300s.

CINCINNATI WOMAN STABBED TO DEATH

Socially Prominent Wife of Executive Found by Him in Their Home.

CINCINNATI, April 12 (AP) clad only in a robe and pajama top, was found stabbed to death yesterday in the doorway of her home in a fashionable part of Cincinnati's Hyde Park

Mrs. Audrey Evers Pugh. 34 years old, was the wife of William W. Pugh, 34, a printing company executive, who found the body when he returned home from his office.

Dr. Herbert P. Lyle, Hamilton county coroner, said details of an autopsy would not be made public because it might give the killer an idea as to the of an autopsy would not be made public because it might give the killer an idea as to the course of the investigation. Police said the only blood found was in the doorway area which indicated that was where Mrs. Pugh had been killed. The officers offered a theory that Mrs. Pugh had been killed. The officers offered a theory that Mrs. Pugh had been aroused by the doorbell and then had been attacked when she opened the door.

Mrs. Pugh was stabbed at least 14 times in her neck and upper chest and suffered lesser wounds on her arms. The wounds on the arms were believed to have been inflicted as she sought to ward off her attacker.

Police said examinations indicated the woman had been dead about three hours when her body was found.

Neighbors described Mrs. Pugh as quiet and deeply religious. They said Pugh was considered "an old society name in Cincinnati."

The Pughs had been married five years. They had no children.

Too Tired to Do Damage, They Inform Correspondents in Is-

By ARCH PARSONS JR.

SOMEWHERE IN ISRAEL SOMEWHERE IN ISRAEL, April 12—Correspondents had a chance this week to find out just what is a "fedayeen": a terrorist and member of a "murder gang" or "suicide squad," as the Israelis describe him, or a commando, a "self-sacrificer" and hero, as the Egyptians see him.

The coportunity was offered.

sacrificer" and hero, as the Egyptians see him.

The opportunity was offered by Israeli officials, who piled newspaper men into cars and drove them to a large hospital—tis location is secret. There the reporters met Said Suliman el Malat, Abdul Rezek Moustafa and Suliman Mohammed Saleh, three wounded and captured fedayeen, and listened to their story.

The interview, in a small room crowded with reporters, photographers, interpreters and guards, lasted nearly an hour. When it was completed, the correspondents were not even agreed on the correct spelling of the names of the men, and the answer to the question of what manner of a man is fedayeen lay somewhere in the midst of truth and the unbelievable, between quick, candid answers to questions and the cautious replies of the three wary young prisoners.

Fedayeen Stories.

Here are the three fedayeen, as they emerged according to the stories they told:

Said Suliman el Malat is about 25 or 26—he is not sure—a refugee from the Palestine war who was a farmhand and is now married and the father of a little girl. He was born in Wadi el Hassi in what is now israel. During the Palestine war he fled to the Gaza strip.

Did he volunteer to be a fedayeen?

About a year ago, Said Suliman el Malat replied, he went to El Arish, in Egypt, in search of work. There he was arrested for failure to possess an identity card and was told to report to the police twice a day. After a while, the police offered him a chance for "intelligence work."

"My father didn't want me to and I continued to report to the police," he said. But a "great many" others followed the police suggestion and finally "I didn't listen to my father and went to train."

He was trained with 40 to 50 others in sabotage at a camperar Cairo and returned to the Gaza strip three months ago. As a fedayeen he received about $18 a month in salary, paid by the Egyptian army—although he said he was not a member of the army.

Ordered Across Border.
Early Saturday morning, he was ordered with three others to cross the Gaza border into Israel. What were his specific orders? "To destroy water pumping stations and pipelines." Was he supposed to kill anyone? "I had no specific instructions."

Did he carry out his mission? "No. I threw away my explosives."

"No. 1 threw away my sives."

Why? "I was very tired."
Abdul Razek Moustafa Arafat is only 17. He is also an Arab refugee from Palestine. He received 15 days training as a fedayeen, but his training was in the Gaza strip itself, not Feoral.

to 1 to 2 points at the best in key sections.

The market started higher in an effort to extend yesterday's rise, but the list faitered in the fourth hour and started down. Selling centered in oils and chemicals. Railroads held doggedly to early gains and maintained a rather good position at the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 20 cents at $188.80. It was ahead $1.00 yesterday, but it fell sharply by $2.60 on Tuesday.

The industrial component of the average was off $1.10, but

The industrial component of the average was off $1.10, but the railroads gained 70 cents while utilities held unchanged. There were 1188 individual issues traded of which 362 advanced and 568 declined with 75 new highs and 56 new lows for the year.

Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 509.15, down 3.55 points at the close; the 20 rails 170.48, up .70, and the 15 utilities 66.57, up .03.)

Business was at a rather good pace at an aggregate 2,700.000 shares for the Gay. That compares with 2,440.000 shares traded yesterday in a higher market.

Aluminum issues were among

Aluminum issues were among the strongest stocks. The industry is enjoying spreading de-mand for the metal. However, they slipped under their best when the selling started. Air-crafts, too, did well early in the session, and then they became mixed late in the day

Railroads throughout were in moderate demand and held to Studebaker-Packard was high-

Studebaker-Packard was higher against the trend, and Curtiss-Wright was strong in its division. Houston Oil slumped between 9 and 10 points around 148. Filtrol reacted between 3 and 4 points after publication of a favorable earnings report. Among higher stocks were Kaiser Aluminum, Alcoa, Reynolds Metals., United Aircraft, American Telephone, Northern Pacific, United Air Lines, and Lukens Steel. Lukens Steel.

Lower were Bethlehem Steel,

Lower were Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Goodrich, Boeing, Consolidated Edison, Kennecott Copper, du Pont, General Electric, Royal Dutch Petroleum, and Paramount Pictures.

The stock market currently is under conflicting pressures and sentiments. Because it has gone so high so fast in recent weeks, brokers have been looking for a reaction. Tuesday's steep mark downs in prices looked like the start of a sizable reaction. It was halted in its tracks the next day, however, and today the same buying sentiment was present in the market at the rescription. sentiment was present in market at the opening of

LONDON, April 12 (AP)—
Buying by American traders brought a slight recovery to the London Stock Exchange to day but the turnover was relatively small and prices were uneven at the close.

British government bonds continued their comeback. German issues were in demand in the foreign bond list.

Selective buying helped leading issues in the industrial list. Newsprints remained in favor while radios closed firm under the lead of Decca. Motors tended to case and tobaccos closed dull.

The vote was light — some 1,600,000 voters went to the polls as compared to almost 2,300,000 in the 1952 primary. Illinois is considered Republican, although on occasion heavily Democratic Cook county (Chicago) can swing it to the other column.

Downstate Illinois is normally Republican, and it is largely agricultural, too. The Demo-crats thought downstate voters were ready for a change be-cause of farm price unrest.

Instead, President Eisenhow-er ran better downstate against Stevenson in Tuesday's primary than he did in the 1952 general election. In returns from down-state, Mr. Eisenhower received 477,256 votes to Stevenson's 226,343—a ratio of better than 2 to 1.

2 to 1.

Four years ago, Mr. Elsenhower polled 1,268,354 votes downstate to 841,466 for Stevenson, under 1½ to 1.

Stevenson topped Mr. Eisenhower in Cook county 476,948 to 256,011 Tuesday. Four years ago it was a different story—Mr. Eisenhower won the big industrial center 1,188,973 to 1,172,454.

Although the Democratic organization had tightened its grip in many Chicago: precincts, the G.O.P. had expected today's booming factories to sway some industrial workers toward the present Administration.

There have been reports that Republicans were making introduced.

Republicans were making in-roads on the Negro vote in northern cities, but in Chicago three almost entirely Negro wards, the Second, Third, and Twentieth, voted four to one for Stevenson Tuesday, as com-pared to the less than two to one trend in the entire county. In farm areas downstate.

In farm areas downstate, some counties that preferred Mr. Eisenhower in 1952 switched to Stevenson this

Feature Spring Vegetables in Menus LUNCHEON MENUS

Asparagus and Cucumbers Excellent Buys; Pineapples, Oranges of Superb Quality.

By DOROTHY BRAINERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

If ever there is a time to enjoy fresh vegetables, it's during the spring months. Even in these days when improved transportation and merchandising methods have made it possible to buy many types of vegetables all year 'round, with excellent canned and frozen shole to buy many ypes of vegetables all year round, with excellent canned and frozen ones to supplement the fresh, there is still a special flavor to the first fresh asparagus, the first corn-on-the-cob, tiny new potatoes and tender baby carrots swimming in melted butter. Perhaps it isn't just the vegetables; perhaps it is a matter of our own taste. Unconsciously we pass up the richen, heavier foods on warm spring days in favor of vegetable plates, or heaping bowls of fresh fruit or vegetable salads.

Fortunately, this tendency fits right into the plans of the budget-conscious homemaker.

Produce departments offer some real bargains now, withquality as high as price is low on many items.

on many items.

Asparagus has now reached the stage where we can say, "This is it—this is the time to make the most of that spring treat."

Eggplant should be an excel-lent item for this week's mar-ket basket. There is plenty of it, and quite reasonably priced

Cauliflower certainly is worthy of serious consideration. And, I repeat, take a look at that cello-wrapped 'flower, the transparent covering proudly re-vealing heads of good size and fine quality.

vealing heads of good size and fine quality.

Corn on the cob is working down to a moderate price range; string beans are inexpensive, with pole beans available in some markets.

There is no reason why you shouldn't use cabbage freely, either cooked for the vegetable course, or raw as a crisp slaw. Speaking of salads, these are truly "salad days" in more ways than one. Seems that the whole vegetable kingdom carefully coordinated a program to make salad vegetables a good buy just at the time that salads are particularly important in our menus.

menus. Leaf lettuce, endive, escarole, romaine, iceberg—each and every one of the basic salad greens are in ample supply, fairly sparkling with freshness, and available at modest prices. There are green peppers to add color and inimitable flavor to those salads, priced reasonably enough to justify also serving them stuffed for a hearty main dish.

main dish.

Tomatoes show some improvement in quality and are down from their recent high; celery is downright cheap and downright good.

Cucumbers deserve special mention. Now is the time to add their crisp texture to tossed salads or serve them as that epicurean delight, slieed cucumbers topped with sour cream.

There are plenty of green onions and radishes, watercress here and there—yes, ma'm, all the "salad makin's" are here aplenty.

F you have been looking at carrots with a wary eye lately, take another long look. Within the past few weeks some have been a little immature, but them a spot of honor on this week's food page.

It is spring in the fruit departments, too. Hothouse I think the partments is thinking out a showing up in some volume.

Cantaloupes have come down a bit in price, and stores report that they are moving quite well which would indicate that consumers find the quality satisfactory.

If you like pineapples, make the most of the fact that you probably won't find a time when they will be a better buy, price-wise and quality-wise. They really are superb, the fresh flavor and aroma so tempting one can hardly wait to prepare and taste them.

Grapefruit and oranges (both Florida and California fruit), continue to be excellent. They rate three stars on maturity, juice and sugar content and are quite reasonable.

Strawberries may cost a little more than you care to pay; if so, just sit tight and you probably can buy them much more reasonably before too long.

Bananas have been quite rea-

Bananas have been quite rea-

Bananas have been quite reasonable for some time and continue to be so. Pears and grapes are becoming a bit scarce, but show no deterioration in quality.

THERE are no changes in the meat situation which are significant enough to warrant comment. Look for buys in good quality steaks and pot roasts. Pork is not quite as cheap as it was a few weeks ago, but certainly is cheap enough, and poultry is holding about steady in price.

Prize-Winning Lemon Abrosia Pie

This pie won top prize in a baking contest held at the National Orange Show in San Berardino, Calif., where entries were limited to desserts made with citrus fruits. Also included in the story below are recipes for a Chocolate Cheese Pie, an Apple Chiffon Pie, and the always popular Pecan Pie.

Some Special Pies to Bake For Your Spring Parties salt and flour. Add eggs, strup and vanilla; mix well. Pour over nuts in shell. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) 40 minutes, or until pie is completely puffed across top. Serve plain or with whipped cream.

WHAT is the favorite dessert in your household? Of course you are the only one who can answer that, but unless we miss our guess pie will come mighty close to being slow over (325 degrees) 45 minutes.

Chop fine one box or can of shredded coconut; spread on baking sheet and toast at 300 degrees until golden brown (about 20 minutes). Use part of this in pastry, the remainder as garnish.

Pie Crust: Sift one cup flour and one-half teaspoon salt together. Cut, in one-third cup shortening, add one-half cup toasted coconut. Work in three tablespoons milk with a fork. Roll out pastry between sheets of waxed paper. Fit into nineof waxed paper. Fit into nine-inch pie shell; prick crust and bake at 400 degrees for 10 to 15 minutes. Cool.

In the past few weeks some have been a little immature, but they show a definite improvement in quality now.

Supplies are thinning out a bit on broccoli, which means that it may cost a little more money, but that which is still available shows no decline inquality.

Mushrooms are fairly plentiful, new onions are offered at bargain prices, new potatoes are becoming more abundant. You will pay a little more for zuchini than for acorn or white squash.

Last but not least are the greens—so good and so good for you that we have given them a spot of honor on this week's food page.

Strictly a party pie, and rich as Jersey cream, is this Chocolate Cheese Party Pie which is a happy combination of four favorites—pastry, chocolate, cheese and whipped cream.

From your standpoint as hostess, it is ideal because it can be made well ahead of time. The recipe makes enough filling for two eight-inch pastry shells so that you may bake a pair of pies to co-star on the buffet table. Chill the pies well; just before serving pile whipped cream in the center and dribble with whipped cream.

READ THOSE LABELS

What's in a label? Nearly everything you buy has a label on it, from canned or frozen foods to prepackaged meats, fish and poultry items. The label should give you exact buying information. It will tell you the name of the product, the weight, and number of servings. Some labels even give information on preparing or serving the food.

Study the label—it is your guide to buying what you want in quantity and quality.

"basic seven" foods which should be eaten every day for a truly well-balanced diet.

But (honest, now) how often do you really serve those leafy greens? You see them piled high on the produce counters these spring days; subconsciously you know that you should serve them to your family, and then you rationalize that your husband and children just don't like them and won't eat them.

Well, madam, it is squarely your responsibility to try to train them to include these nutritionally valuable vegetables in their diets. Food tastes are frequently a matter of habit and mental attitude.

A good rule to remember about leafy greens is "the greener they are, the richer in Vitamin A; the fresher they are, the richer in Vitamin C." If green vegetables must be held a day or two before using, refrigerate them. Keep them moist, in the vegetable crisper or other covered container, in the moisture-resistant hag they came in, or in a plastic bag. Be careful not to bruise them in sorting.

FRESH LEAFY GREENS Do You Know Them All?

How many of these fresh cooking greens do you know by sight, and by taste? Pictured above are (1) turnip greens, (2) spinach, (3) kale, (4) mustard greens and (5) beet tops.

Keep them moist, in the vegetable crisper or other covered container, in the moisture-resistant bag they came in, or in a plastic bag. Be careful not to bruise them in sorting.

In addition to spinach and kale, cooking greens include collards, beet tops, mustard, dandelion and turnip greens, so experiment a bit with them. The dark-green leaves can add variety to every-day meals.

Young, tender greens should be cooked only in the water that clings to their leaves. Serve them with a sprinkle of fresh lemon juice, butter or termibled bacon. sugar and grated peel of one lemon.

Make Lemon-Sugar by mixing sugar and peel together; set aside until needed.

Mix sugar, grated lemon peel and biscuit mix together in large bowl. Combine water and lemon juice; add to biscuit mix; stir to make a stiff dough.

Brush an eight-inch ring mold or nine by five-inch loaf pan with melted butter, sprinkle generously with lemon-sugar.

Divide dough in four parts, and shape each into 12 small balls of dough. Line mold with two rows of balls (using 12 in each row) to form first layer. Brush with half the melted butter; sprinkle with half the remaining lemon-sugar mixture. Repeat for second layer.

Bake at 400 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes or until lightly browned. Turn upside down on cooling rack and, if desired, glaze with plain icing while still warm.

For plain icing mix together one-half cup confectioners' sugar, one and one-half teaspoons milk and few drops vanilla.

IT IS SIMPLE TO STORE THE 'POP' IN POPCORN

When you settle down for an evening before the television set, do you sometimes yearn for a heaping bowl of fluffy popped corn — all warm and buttery? You look through your kitchen cabinet and, happily, find some corn left over from the last time you brought out the popper. But instead of the large, tender bits of popcorn you made before, the kernels turn out to be only half-popped and half-tender. There goes your dream. Want to know what happened in the few days since you removed specially - processed, perfectly-poppable corn from its original airtight container? The popcorn kernels dried out—because of the relatively warm air in our modern homes. Once popcorn has been opened, use one simple precaution to maintain correct moisture content. Seal the kernels again in a jar, can, or plastic bag and keep in a cool place or in the freezer. If corn is already dried out from incorrect storage, raise the moisture content by moistening a cloth or blotter in salt solution, rolling it up, and putting it into a tight container with the corn. Let stand at least 24 hours. When ready to use the corn, mix it thoroughly and test-pop a few kernels. If still too dry, repeat the moistening procedure.

And equally important for the largest, tenderest popped corn—be sure to use hot oil, close to 500 degrees in temperature. An accurate heat test of the oil can be made by dropping in a few kernels to see if they "spin". If they do, you're ready to pop. Pour in only one layer of kernels, having oil deep enough to just cover them. Put on the lid and shake, keeping the heat high. In less than a minute you'll hear action going on inside. At the sound of the last few pops, remove from heat.

Sherry Baste.

"Sherry Baste." is the ideal mixture for spooning over chicken—whether it's roasted or oven-fried—to give a rich, spicy crust. Simply heat together one cup sherry wine, one-fourth cup butter or margarine, one tablespoon each of brown sugar and lemon juice, and one teaspoon of soy sauce.

Quick Ham Sauce.

Combine a well-drained No. 2 can of crushed pineapple with one tablespoon prepared horseradish and a pinch of salt and mustard. Chill overnight. Serve cold with baked ham.

Mrs. Eanes, a Negro, thought she was still in the house when the mother got into the truck, polife said. A wheel passed over the child's head.

Mrs. Eanes, 41, said she and her husband and eight children had just finished supper. A load of trash had to be taken to a junkyard, she said, and both the truck and the family a passenger car, the battery of which was dead, were in the driveway.

While a son, Bennie, 15, tried to push the car, Mrs. Eanes started backing the truck. She looked to the rear, but Glenda was behind the vehicle where she could not be seen. Mrs.
Eanes backed about eight feet.

"Then Bennie started-screaming that I had hit the baby," Mrs. Eanes related. The child was dead on arrival at St.

PAINTING AT LONDON GALLERY DISAPPEARS

Irish Students' Spokesman Boasts They Took It-Long Legal Dispute.

LONDON, April 12 (AP)—A valued painting—subject of a legal controversy between London and Dublin—disappeared from the Tate Gallery today, A spokesman for a group of Irish nationalist students boasted it had been taken.

The painting was "Jour d'Ete (Summer Day)" by the noted French woman impressionist Berthe Morisot. It is valued at about $28,000.

Sir John Rothenstein, director of the Tate Gallery, told police the picture — measuring 17½ by 29 inches—disappeared sometime between 10 and 11 17½ by 29 inches—disappeared sometime between 10 and 11 a.m.

The London bureau of the Irish New Agency, sponsored by the Irish Government, said it received a call from a man who identified himself as a representative of the Irish National Students Council. He dictated a statement saying the painting had been removed.

The painting was one of 39 bequeathed by Sir Hugh Lane, who was a director of the National Gallery in Ireland and a famous collector.

The bequest has been the subject of dispute between London and Dublin ever since Sir Hugh died in the sinking of the Lusitania in 1915.

Sir Hugh originally lent his collection to Dublin on condition that a permanent gallery be provided. When none was established he withdrew the loan.

In a will made in 1913 he established he withdrew the loan.

In a will made in 1913 he bequeathed the pictures to the National Gallery in London. A codicil dated early in 1915 altered this bequest and left the pictures to Dublin on condition that an art gallery be provided within five years. But this codicil reportedly lacked the signatures of two witnesses and was held illegal. This started the dispute.

CHARGES FILED AGAINST BUFORD, FORMER OFFICER

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. April 12 (AP)—Police Chief Verner Pigg filed disturbance charges yesterday against Mayor O. R. Buford and Delbert Carlton, a

Buford and Delbert Carlton, a retired city police captain.

The charges grew out of a fist fight Buford and Carlton staged on the City Hall steps March 31. Neither man was visibly marked in the exchange of blows but the 665-year-old Mayor later checked in as a patient at a local hospital.

Buford is charged in the Police Chief's complaint with "making loud and unusual noises, using profane language and fighting."

Carlton, 41, who retired from the force on a disability pension following a heart attack, is accused of striking the Mayor with his fist.

Carlton said the altercation

Carlton said the altercation streamed from an argument he had with Buford while a member of the department.

NEW PLEA TO SHIFT CAUDLE, CONNELLY, SCHWIMMER TRIAL

A supplemental motion was filed today in United States District Court here on behalf of T. Lamar Caudle, Matthew J. Connelly and Harry I. Schwimmer seeking a transfer to Washington of their trial on charges growing out of the tax scandal inquiry.

growing out of the tax scandal inquiry.

The motion makes allegations similar to those overruled by United States District Judge Rubey M. Hulen several weeks ago. They are that publicity received by the grand jury here which indicted them made a fair trial here impossible and that the case should be transferred to Washington for the convenience of the defendants. A hearing on the supplemental motion was set for April 20.

U.S. JUDGE WILLIAM HASTIE TO BE LAW DAY SPEAKER

Judge William Henry Hastle of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit will be the principal speaker at the annual St. Louis University Law day next Saturday, it was announced today.

Judge Hastle, Philadelphia Negro, is the first of his race to occupy the appeals bench. He will address a dinner at 6:30 p.m. at Hotel Chase, climaxing the day's activities. His subject is "The Individual Lawyer's Responsibility in the Civil Rights Area."

Area."

Law day activities will begin Law day activities will begin at 1 p.m. with a panel discussion of wire tapping in the moot court room of the School of Law, 3642 Lindell boulevard. Panelists will be John Raeburn Green, St. Louis attorney; Harry C. Blanton, a Sikeston (Mo.) lawyer, and former United States attorney here, and Robert B. Vining, professor of law at the university, Richard J. Childress, assistant professor of law at the university, will be moderator.

EBERHARD ANHEUSER QUITS, WAS AT BREWERY 60 YEARS

Eberhard Anheuser, who has been associated with Anheuser-Busch, Inc., for 60 years, has resigned as chairman of the board of directors and will retire from company activities, it was announced today after a board meeting.

August A. Busch Jr. was elected to replace him as chairman of the board. Busch also will remain president of the brewery. Anheuser will stay on as a member of the board. Two new directors have been elected. They are Powell B. McHaney, president of General American Life Insurance Co., and John F. Krey, president of Krey Packing Co.

straight-ening the bedroom. (Or your long winded Marilly friend gets on the phone.) Set the alarm for the time you should take another look at the cooking food, and go on about your work.

It is said that at one time in the Far East if the man of the house ate too much he sunmmoned a trained servant to sing away his tummy ache.

IT'S WORTH & TRY TO Add one-half teaspoon Oregane and a dash of Onion Sait to to mate soup.

... Serve easy-to-make Mus-tard Hollandoise Sauce with baked fish.
... Add I teaspoon of mint leaves to frozen or fresh peas while cooking, or to canned peas while heat-ing.
... Serve corn custard with baked ham silce.
... Make green beans, canned or fresh, really flavorful by adding a can of creamed mushroom soup.

Proposed $345,000,000 Redevelopment Assailed at Meeting of Home-Owners.

Vigorous opposition to a pro-posed $345,000,000 redevelop-ment program for the 350square-block Lafayette area in south St. Louis was expressed last night a meeting of the South Twelfth Street Improvement Association, attended by about 100 home-owners. The group heard O. O. Mc-Cracken, director of develop-ment for the St. Louis Land Clearance for Redevelopment and Housing Authorities, explain the program, which calls for the rehabilitation of some homes and demolition of sub-standard dwellings, to be replaced by private housing proj-

About 25 persons, including two State Representatives and three members of the Board of Aldermen approved the Land Clearance Authority proposal that the area be declared blighted so the city can seek a federal loan to finance rede-velopment studies.

velopment studies.

John H. Drisser, president of the association, contended that the area proposed for rehabilitation, which is bounded roughly by Chouteau avenue, Dorcas street, Seventh street and Mississippi avenue, is "the best neighborhood in St. Louis."

vigorous applause greeted one member of the audience who exhorted the group to "knock this plan out while it's still tentative."

Complaining that "major improvements always hit the Seventh Ward," Alderman Raymond Leisure said he understood that 90 per cent of the homes in the area would be razed to carry out the five-year program.

Charles Farris, executive director of the Land Clearance Authority, has estimated that 10 to 15 per cent of the 10,304 dwellings in the area could be rehabilitated.

Alderman Louis Aboussie of dwellings in the area could be rehabilitated.

Alderman Louis Aboussie of the Ninth Ward said he does not consider the Lafayette area blighted.
Aldermanic Vice President Anton Niemeyer of the Eighth Ward and State Representatives Robert Uxa and Joseph Martino likewise voiced opposition to the plan. A number of speakers said they believed the city would not give them a fair price for their property in condemnation proceedings.
The meeting was held at St. John Nepomuk Catholic Church, 1629 South Eleventh street.

BIG DAY: 2 BABIES, VICTORY AT POLLS

Events moved swiftly for the Mudge family Tuesday when Dick H. Mudge Jr., young Edwardsville attorney, defeated the Democratic machine and became the party's candidate for State's Attorney of Madison county.

State's Attorney of Madison county.

John Mudge, his brother and campaign manager, arose early that morning, filled with excitement beyond election day hopes and fears. He took his wife, Beverly, to their polling place. After she cast her ballot at 6:01 a.m., they rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital at Alton where she gave birth to a son later in the day.

Shortly after noon, Mrs. Dick Mudge's brother, Charles B. Godfrey, received an urgent call which took hirh home from the precinct where he was working in Mudge's behalf. He rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital with his wife, Barbara, who gave birth to a daughter.

Both mothers and bables were reported doing well today. But the mothers were not in the same room. Mrs. Mudge was in isolation because she also is recovering from an attack of measles.

'Proven by Quality.'

The training curriculum, according to a Marine summary of Parris Island operations, "has been tried, tested and proven effective as indicated by the quality of recruits produced over the period of years."

Gen. Randolph Pate, Marine Corps commandant, sensed immediately, however, that there would be demands for less rigorous instruction after the drowning incident last Sunday night, in circumstacnes now under investigation.

The general, deploring the accident, asked that "our history be remembered and that no premature opinions be formed on modifications to our system of training." Later, however, Maj Gen. Joseph C. Burger, Parris Island commander, said "some change in techniques may be indicated" by the current inquiry.

On arrival at camp, a Marine recruit gets a "boot haircut," has a physical examination, takes a few tests and hears some lectures, and then the 10 weeks course is under way.

some lectures, and then the 10 weeks course is under way.

Drill Instructor Is Key.

"At the heart of recruit training." the Marine summary on Parris Island says, is the drill instructor—three to each platoon. A non-commissioned officer with "a high degree of command presence," maturity and stability, the instructor indoctrinates the recruits thoroughly in the business of being Marines and is with them day and night.

It was a drill instructor, 31-year-old Staff Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon, who ordered the march Sunday night, which Pate called "most unusual."

In the first five weeks, the recruit learns infantry drill, military courtesy and discipline, personal hygiene, guard duty, barracks life, care and cleaning of equipment, Marine Corps history, swimming, physical drill with and without arms, athletics, first aid, and assembly and disassembly of weapons.

$5 Pet. Can Swim.

The recruit gets 10 hours of swimming instruction. If he cannot swim when he arrives the time is spent in giving him beginner's lessons.

The operations and training section says that about 85 per cent of all recruits can swim when they leave; around 60 per cent already know how when follow Every Marine is first and follows.

cent already know how wnen they arrive.

Three weeks of marksmanship follow. Every Marine is first and foremost a rifleman and the recruit is never allowed to forget it. The ninth week is devoted to mess duty and the tenth to further work on combat principles, bayonet training and refreshers.

Then a 10-day furlough is followed by combat and specialty schooling.

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C., April 12 (UP)—A chartered airplane returns to their next of kin today the bodies of five young men who arrived at this Marine Corps boot camp as recruitless than two months ago.

The private plane was chartered by the Marine Corps for the flight. The bodies of five of the six recruits who were drowned Sunday night on a "discipline" march were on the plane for the funeral flight. The body of the sixth recruit, Pvt. Thomas Curtin Hardeman. 20 years old, will be taken by train to Vidalla, Ga.

The dead were honored during the morning with two memorial services in the chapel of the training base. A Roman Catholic solemn requiem high mass was held for Pvt. Donald F. O'Shea, 18, of Brooklyn, NY. A Protestant service in the same chapel was held later for Hardeman, Pvt. ### ALLERGENIC ELEMENTS REMOVED Medical science also determined that some elements found in raw orange juice caused an allergenic condition in many infants. BiB's scientific process removes them. Extensive research studies conducted in a nationally known hospital (name on request) demonstrated the absence of any allergy-producing substance in BiB Orange Juice.

GUARANTEES BABY'S DAILY VITAMIN C NEEDS

Laboratory tests prove that oranges vary greatly in their Vitamin C content, and that orange juice squeezed at home may supply less Vitamin C than the doctor recommends; sometimes less than half as much. BiB guarantees more than the full daily requirement of natural Vitamin C in every 4-ounce can because oranges are scientifically selected at the neak of their Vitamin C content, then swiftly processed.

BLEAK FUTURE IN MADISON COUNT Both Candidates for State's Attorney Pledge Strict Enforcement of Law. Gamblers who have operated with little interference from Madison county authorities, faced an uneasy future today as both the Democratic and Republican candidates for State's Attorney of the county pledged themselves to strict enforcement of gambling laws, if elected.

elected.

Accompanying this development was evidence of a growing revolt against the entrenched leadership of the Democratic party in the county by a group of young politicians who beat the machine's candidate for State's Attorney Tuesday with 36-year-old Dick H. Mudge Jr. of Edwardsville.

Switch Apparently Out. Switch Apparently Out.

In the past, Madison county gamblers have been able to switch allegiance from one party to another from time to time to elect officials willing to permit them to operate with a minimum of interference. Now the gamblers will be frozen out, if both candidates for the important State's Attorney post stick with their announced intentions.

Mudge, a former Army Air

nounced intentions.

Mudge, a former Army Air Corps pilot whose father was a circuit judge, defeated machine-backed Austin Lewis, former state's, attorney, in Tuesday's Democratic primary, by about 3100 votes. Former State Representative Edward D.
Groshong of East Alton was unopposed for the Republican nomination and will run against Mudge in the November election.

"I am not going to anticipate "I am not going to anticipate that the sheriff and other police officers will not enforce the law," Mudge said today, "but I will say this: I will not sit quietly in the state's attorney's office and wait for evidence of gambling law violations to be brought to me as other state's attorneys have done."

ALGIERS, April 12 (AP)— Ramadan, the Moslem month of fasting, got under way in Algeria today as scattered fighting between French and Rebel forces continued. Some 80 rebels and six French men were reported killed in the past 48 hours—mostly in the Constantine area.

Club will not operate if I am elected state's attorney."

Mudge created a stir in Madison county during his campaign by twice distributing, leaflets from a low-flying plane announcing his intention to close the Prevue and run the gamblers out.

Groshong, an attorney who served during World War II and the Korean War in the Army's counter intelligence corps, told the Post-Dispatch if he were elected he would "strictly enforce the law and run the gangsters out of Madison county"

Groshong represented three Granite City ministers who filed a petition with the Illinois Liquor Control Commission recently asking, that the Club Prevue's liquor license be revoked. The commission revoked. The commission revoked. The commission revoked. The representation in circuit court at Edwardsville asking an injunction in circuit court at Edwardsville asking that the revocation be set aside. The case was to be heard today.

Praises Party Newcomers.

Mudge attributed his success. The French faced Ramadan with considerable apprehension. The French faced Ramadan with considerable apprehension. During the month Moslems fast all day and feast at night. The observance throws work schedules and tempers out of gear. Little incidents often flare into serious situations.

The French exhibit decided serious situations.

The French cabinet decided in Paris last night to make a heavy call on its reserve forces within the next month to help restore order in Algeria. The action came in response to appeals from Resident Minister Robert Lacoste that big troop shipments now would give a show of force and help clean out the rebels before they get a stronger foothold.

In a measure designed to win Moslem support, the French have decided to expropriate and redistribute farm holdings of more than 375 acres.

Praises Party Newcomers. Mudge attributed his success

Fraises Party Newcomers.

Mudge attributed his success in the primary largely to the work of several young Democrats, most of whom are newcomers as party workers.

"I must give a lot of credit to my younger brother. John, who managed my campaign," he said. "But without these other men, who brought out a large vote for me in Edwards-ville, Gfanite City and Wood River, I might not have won."

Two key men in the Mudge camp were Harold Hillmer, a young Laclede Steel Co. engineer, who defeated State's Attorney Fred P. Schuman for precinct committeeman by a better than 2-to-1 vote, and William Thomas, a salesman, who trounced Sheriff Kenneth T. Ogle, chairman of the Madison county Democratic committee, in another precinct race. Both precincts are in Granite City.

It was the first time either man had sought political office. Thomas became intensely interested in politics four years ago as a volunteer worker for Adlai E. Stevenson. Two years ago he supported Paul S im on, youthful Troy publisher, when Simon successfully bucked the Democratic machine to become a state legislator.

Help in Another Area.

In the Alton area Mudge was added by the work of Paul Hawkins, a former constable who incurred the enmity of the Ogle-Schuman machine by leading a gambling raid on a private club, and Allan Radcliffe, a young barber who is taking a correspondence law course.

Hawkins was re-elected precinct committeeman, defeating Deputy Sheriff Eugene Kitz-

Hawkins was re-elected precinct committeeman, defeating Deputy Sheriff Eugene Kitz-miller, and Radcliffe tied for precinct committeeman with Patrick O'Neill, chairman of the Alton Democratic City Commit-tee. There will be a recount in the Radcliffe-O'Neill race.

"I wasn't too surprised by the heavy vote for me in Ed-wardsville and Granite City," Mudge said, "but I was amazed that I held up so well in Venice and Madison. Many people stayed away from the polls there and I didn't get the shelthat I held up so well in Venice and Madison. Many people stayed away from the polls there and I didn't get the shellacking I expected."

Political observers expressed the belief that Ogle, who is a trustee of the politically-potent East Side Levee & Sanitary District as well as sheriff, will continue to be a dominant figure in this party. But alignments will change as a result of the surprising primary vote, they said, and the position of Ogle and Schuman will be somewhat weakened.

In the only other important primary contest, Dr. W. W. Billings, former Coroner, also upset the machine's candidate. He won in a close race from both Thomas J. Burke, the machine choice, and Ben Staten, now serving as Coroner, for the Democratic nomination for Coroner.

be made from city residents.

Jones and Connor held that the Missouri statutes governing the operation of the city's police department are silent on the matter of residence for new appointees to the department, and give the board authority to make rules and regulations for the department's operation.

They stated that the only basis for the present requirement that appointees must have been residents of the city for two years was in the rules adopted by the Police Board and that, in their opinion, the board could change these rules.

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff. DENVER, April 12-Members of the Cardinals today unhesitatingly picked themselves to finish in the first divisionsome even talked of an outside pennant chance-as they hailed the return of Vinegar Bend Mizell, the progress of Ken Boyer and a team spirit in which new Manager Fred Hutchinson drew

Generally a conviction of stronger pitching and added experience of younger players led to the optimism, but individually it was Mizel and Boyer who were mentioned most often in an informal private interrogation of the more seasoned gation of the more seasoned Redbirds. Veteran newcomers Ellis Kinder and Hank Sauer also drew strong support. Probably the most significant observation, however, was repeated reference to better team spirit and attiude under Hutchinson, successor to Harry Walker and Eddie Stanky. As one player put it:

"I played regularly under Stanky, so I'm not a complaining bench-warmer, and I respected him as a smart manager, but he just didn't know how to handle men. You can't treat 'em all alike. Hutch is no softie, but, as Bill Posedel said, he doesn't demand respect—he commands it."

ieser Shows Well

Spieser Shows Well
In Beating Rowan.

CHUCK SPIESER showed to advantage in defeating the rugged Joe Rowan of Philadelphia by a 6-round knockout in Detroit Olympia. It was the best effort by Spieser seen on television and it appears he will be a man to reckon with for the 175-pound title if and when Archie Moore abdicates.

Rowan had a six and one-

Rowan had a six and one-half pound edge in weight on Spieser but after the first round the former Michigan state athlete had things his Rowan previously had been weights.

But you don't get into the light heavyweight division when you weigh 180 pounds, as Rowan did against Spieser, so if Joe has any ideas of competing seriously in the division he would have to shed another five pounds.

Spieser appears ready for anything in the 175-pound class and he may be favored by the retirement of Moore and the fact that Floyd Patterson plans to move into eighth.

Elsewhere, Johnny Antonelli, bidding to return to the 20-victories group after a 14-16 disappointment in '55, struck out eight while scattering five hits and walking three in his seven innings as the New York Giants whacked the Cleveland Indians, 5-1. Bob Lennon and Gail Harris made up for the slumping Willie Mays by clubhing homers off Early Wynn and Mike Garcia, half of Cleveland's tottering 'Big Four' who were among the missing as the American League went without a 20-game winner in 1955 for the first time since 1900.

Baltimore's Orioles beat the Chicago Cubs, 5-4, shutting out the Bruins until the ninth when Monte Irvin opened with a homer and Jim King came. crown.

Cus D'Amato, Patterson's manager, said that he is very dissatisfied with the financial terms offered him for his boy to oppose Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson. That seems strange for a fighter, trying to build himself into a championship challenger, to be hollering about financial terms.

It would seem that Patterson would have to prove him-self against somebody like Jackson before he could be considered seriously as an opponent for Rocky Marciano and should welcome chance to prove himself.

chance to prove himself.

Jackson goes against Johnny Williams of England at Washington and the Hurricane should blow over the former champion of Great Britain without too much trouble, although Jackson is an unpredictable fighter. He appears great on some occasions, far from great on others.

And what a scramble Wil-

And what a scramble Williams could make of the heavyweight division by beating Jackson. Tommy was kayoed easily by Nino Valdes who lost in a miserable showing to Bob Baker, who, in turn, was trounced by Jackson in Madison Square Garden. So an upset by Williams would leave 'nobody around te fight Marciano except Moore or Patterson.

It is hardly likely, however, that Williams could defeat Jackson as Williams was knocked out by Don Cockell.

Olson Talking Again.

CARL (BOBO) OLSON
started the final phase of training for his title bout with Ray Robinson by declaring that Robinson is "an old man, who can't go 15 rounds."
Robinson might not have to worry about being able to go 15 rounds, if Olson isn't any better than he was in Chicago when Ray knocked him out in two rounds.

That setback, which cost him the 160-pound title, Ol-him the 160-pound title, Ol-son blames on himself for being overconfident, careless and distracted, by family

Well, he certainly was careless and subsequent disclosures proved that he was be-set by family troubles but nothing has happened since December, at least publicly, to indicate that his personal affairs have been straightto indicate that his personal affairs have been straightened.

Such claims do not become a boxer, anyway. It would be like a famous comedian telling his audience, after a poor performance, that he couldn't be funny because he had trouble with his wife.

The public has sympathy for a performer who has trouble but doesn't feel kindly about putting out good dough to see a sub-par effort, then listening to the excuss about troubles.

If a boxer has such difficulties he should avoid a public appearance until such time as he has arranged his own affairs so that he will be able to give his best.

What Olson will do against Robinson this time is complicated by just such "Ifs." He has been knocked out twice by Robinson and beaten on another occasion by decision. That certainly shows that Olson would have to be at his very best to best Robinson, conceded to be something less than at his peak.

But how are you going to string along with a fellow who made such a feeble effort only a few short months ago?

The best thing Olson can do is to keep his mouth shut smill he has made up for the knockout he suffered in Chicago.

JIM JACOBS—Winner of the U.S.H.A. singles at Los Angeles and the 1955 National Y.M.C.A. singles at Reading, Pa., is considered an intense student of the game. He is cunning and does not gamble on "kill" shots. Being a cagy and dedicated player who takes his training seriously, Jim will strive for a long volley game to work his opponent into a desired position before making a "kill." He is chiefly a right hander.

state indoor. Whether Faurot saw the heave was not important. What was, was that it was the mightiest indoor toss in state high school history, 53 feet, 7½ inches. The former record, by Lynn Goodman of Kansas City Southwest, was 53 feet 3% inches.

Fresh Air Helps.
Yesterday, Wilkes did even better outdoors. Competing in Clayton's invitational meet, Jerry tossed the iron ball 53 feet 10 inches which broke the record made by Kirkwood's Carroll Maas in 1949. Mas, no mean weight man himself, put the shot 51 feet 234 inches, a good effort even today.

Nobody was close to Wilkes in the Clayton preliminaries. Richard Bell of Maplewood, who had the second best throw, was more than six feet away at 47 feet, 1 inch. All five who qualified will come back in Saturday's finals but the odds are greatly in favor of Wilkes doninating the other shotput contestants.

Wilkes had the only clear-cut superiority in the Clayton field. Most of the better name runners qualified in the running races. Webster's Jim Massengale and McBride's Rufus Davis survived the semifinals in the 100-yard dash by winning their respective heats in 10.5 seconds.

Clayton's Bob Barnes ran a good quarter-mile to lead the field with 52.6 seconds and Kirkwood's Kent Overbey was

Last week, when the state A, B and C meets were run off in Brewer Field House, the Master of Ol' Mizzou spent considerable time around the shotputring where owners of bulging biceps were taking their throws.

One shotputter who caught Faurot's eye was Jerry Wilkes. St. Louis U. High's tremendous muscleman and football lineman who handles the iron ball like it was a pea. There was a report Faurot delayed his grid practice a few minutes while he watched Big Jerry make his record-breaking throw in the state indoor.

The St. Louis U. High halfmile relay team nipped Kirkwood in its heat, to set the pace with a time of 1:34.8. C.B.C. won its heat in 1:35.5 with a quartet composed of Joe Linhares, Pat McFarland, Charles Wirts and Don Edinger.

Black river below Frisco Railroad bridge at Poplar Bluff, Mo., open for year-round fishing on all species. So is the White below Table Rock Dam construction to the Arkansas State line. The James is also open up to Galena, Mo.; but it is extremely low and the entire water course is filled with moss and water primrose and in extremely poor fishing condition. All rivers are low and clear but warmer temperatures are needed for successful stream

The black bass fishing on the Gravois Arm of the Lake of the Ozarks is reported as "phenomenal." Nearly 9700 bass and more than 1000 catfish have been taken from Duck Creek management area since the March 15 opening but fishing is slow at the Mingo Wildlife refuge. A 10-pound, 12-ounce bass was taken last week in the Pontiac area of Bull Shoals and a 10-pounder from the Panther Bay territory at Norfork. Two anglers fishing Bull Shoals last week boated 16 bass totaling 80 pounds. White bass fishing is in high gear at Norfork.

High winds have kept many fishermen off the big waters and Crab Orchard is dingy from the constant wind squalls. Excellent black bass catches are being made at Little Grassy lake in Illinois on deep-running spinner lures. More than 1500 trout fishermen on the White and Norfork rivers below the dams had amazing success and the Arkansas wardens estimated that nearly half of them made limit catches of browns and rainbows. Several weighing more than four pounds were taken. Kentucky Lake is dingy but clearing and trotline fishermen are catching large quantities of catfish on cut baits and beef hearts. Crappie are beginning to spawn and are moving out in the shallow waters. Bass fishing is reported good at Lake Killarney in the Arcadia Valley Weekend predictions: Prospects dim for stream fishing but live minnows and deep-running plugs will take bass on the imoundments. Crappie and white bass fishing will improve on the lakes if there is some warm sunshine.

Ritenour 8-1 League Win

The Suburban League finally launched its baseball season, although only half of the 12 schools were able to play yesterday. Ferguson and Al Sona flipped Clayton, 5 to 3, Wellston nosed out Kirkwood, 11 to 9, and Ritenour pounded St. Charles, 8 to 1, in first round games.

Webster Groves, the defending champion, was to have played at Brentwood, but the Eagles' diamond is being rebuilt and was still muddy after Tuesday's rain. That was the day the six opening Suburban games were scheduled to be played.

Sona, considered one of the Seago 10 better prep pitchers in the area, was losing his game, 3 to 1, after five and one-half innings. Ferguson, in the last half of the sixth, took advantage of Jim Kearney's wildness to score four runs on the Clayton start-

Oh, Those Walks!

Oh. Those Walks:

A hit batsman, three walks, a wild pitch, a sacrifice fly and a fielders' choice all combined to give the Comets their four tallies and a victory for Ed Tschannen's team. Ferguson made just two hits, both singles. Ritenour, behind Elmer Yordt's effective five-hit pitching, had little trouble with St. Charles.

Wellston Coach 'Charles Oellerman rotated his pitchers between the mound and first base. Jerry Cebe started for the Trojans and was changed in the sixth after pitching to three batters. He went to first and Johnny Jones, who had been there, took over the hurling choves. Jones finished, allowing Kirkwood two more tafties in the seventh, but that only made the score closer.

In a non-league game, De Andreis suffered its first loss in five starts when it was beaten by Belleville Cathedral, 2 to 1. Marion (Bud) Zipfel batted in one run and scored the other.

Chicago Eagles here on April 29.

Reports from the East say that there is now about $5000 in the United States Olympic soccer kitty. That's about one-sixth of what's needed to send the squad to Australia. Another $5000 is anticipated from a game at Yankee Stadium, April 29, between stars of the American Soccer League and the Israel Olympic team. . . The United States soccer coach has not yet been named. . . Friends of soccer are hoping the post will go to a genuine soccer team leader, not, as in the past, to a U.S.S.F.A. official. . . If that happens again the delegates at the annual national convention may give the current office holders a jolt.

Marching Memo to Mayor

Uniformed firemen, part of a group of about 2000 who picketed New York's City Hall yesterday, marching in procession bearing placards addressed to Mayor Robert Wagner demanding pay increase in consideration of the peril of their work. Perade and demand for more pay was spurred by the death of six firemen who perished while fighting a fire in the Bronx last week. The men are seeking to increase their $5315 annual salary to $7000.

Bruce Nicholas, of State College, Pa., Navy radarman assigned to the ammunition ship Great Sitkin, with Mamie Fehnel, a Pennsylvania State University student, who is possibly one reason why Nicholas sent rhyming telegram to his skipper, asking for a 20-day extension of leave. His captain, inspired by the poetic plea, replied in verse, granting him 10 extra days. Nicholas now emerges as a victim only of spring fever and, dealing prudently with a "delicate and sensitive" subject, says he really isn't in love. Just "going out." The verse, he concedes, too, was written by a friend.

OUSTER ACTION

Tiny Tim, veteran cat mascot of the Humane Society of Missouri and a permanent resident of the shelter at 1210 Macklind avenue, has a penchant for puppies. Taking advantage of his prestige, he settles in puppy pen where he usually sleeps, as the youngsters play around him.

Tim comes in for close scrutiny from the pups, many of whom are recent arrivals at the shelter and unaware of Tim's habits.

Curious pups crowd closer and one of their number boldly nips Tim in the neck. Tim, an old hand with pups, patiently submits to rough treatment.

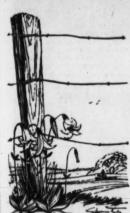

Dignity is unruffled but he's been through it all before and enough is enough so Tim departs, surrounded by victorious puppies as he leaves their domain. He returns later and beds down when the youngsters, worn out by play, are peacefully sleeping.

Wildflowers Blooming And the Oats Are In

By Leonard Hall

N our hurry to cover the last leg of our long journey home to Possum Trot, we didn't slow down long enough to mark closely the advance of spring. But since then we've traveled south again to Caruthersville, a distance of some 180 miles, to talk to the association of teachers in the schools there. And I think the old rule that each 100 miles makes a difference of about a week in the season is fairly accurate. Inci-dentally, we've never met a pleasanter group of people than those in Caruthersville; and not only the teachers, but also the townsfolk who talk. Coming | back north again through the rich, level land of the Delta counties and then into the Ozark hills, we slowed our pace enough to enjoy the scenery. And we also stopped in Portageville for a short visit at the Marsh plantation with our friend Matilda Cavanaugh. Here we found that the harvest had just begun on their 90 acres of asparagus and came away with a half-bushel basket of our favorite vegetable. Our own luck with asparagus has been unbelievably bad, for twice, just as we've gotten a bed to the stage of bearing, an over-enthusiastic helper has plowed it under while breaking the spring

IN THE TOWNS of southern Missouri, when we were there last week, the redbud was at the peak of its bloom and peach blossoms had already fallen. As we came up out of the bottom lands into the timbered hills, we found the peaches in full glory; most of these being seedlings along the fence rows, deserted orchards clustering around oid farmsteads or rarely some well-cared-for trees in a farmer's front yard. Dogwood buds were still tightly closed, but there were other evidences of spring in the woods. Along the creeks the spicebush was in bloom and the shad-bush or sarvice berry showed its lacy white on every rocky hillside. Thickets of wild plum in old fence rows were just coming into blossom. You could see the color in the redbud and know that on the first warm day it would open. Those warm days arrived just after our return and now the edges of the woodland are a solid mass of color. Incidentally, the redbud is a legume which is browsed by cattle and it is something of a wonder, in the Ozarks, that it survives as persistently as it does.

THERE ARE OTHER TREES which make a brave display at this season before the leaves come out and one of the handsomest of these is the red maple. display at this season before the leaves come out and one of the handsomest of these is the red maple. Actually we have two or three varieties of Acer rubrum, one being the tree that grows on the sour, thin soils of rocky Ozark hillsides and the other the Swamp red maple. This variety we first saw in flower in early February when we reached the northern boundary of Florida where it grows in abundance. Then as we came homeward in late March, the red maples marched with us, through Georgia and Alabama and then up into the Smokey Mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee. Still other trees which are interesting in the bud stage are the hickory — and especially the second-growth which sprouts from an old stump—and the buckeye or horse chestnut. The terminal leaf buds of the hickory are huge and unfold with a flower-like brilliance that is startlingly beautiful. Buckeye also unfolds its leaves from a terminal bud, but this is followed by a handsome, showy flower-spike, yellow-white in the Ohio variety and yellow-red in Aesculus discolor or red-flowered buckeye.

THE FLOWERS of many of the shrubs which bloom at this season are rather inconspicuous, yet are worth searching out. Among these are leatherwood with little yellow bells, bladder-nut which has drooping graceful clusters of greenish-white flowers, buckthorn or Rhamnus carolinians boasting two different kinds of blossoms on twigs of different lengths, and yellow-flowered gooseberry. Others will come along later; the flowering dogwood and other members of the family Cornus including alternifolia, obliqua, asperifolia, stricta and racemosa. And then there are the hawthorns, huckleberry and black haw. As always, we've discovered one new flower this season which we're having difficulty in identifying; this one having thrust its head up at the edge of Ginnie's small wildflower garden in the front yard. The single, five-petalled flower at the top of a 5-inch round stem is deep sky blue with a yellow center, very much resembling the hepatica. And the plant has two narrow oval leaves somewhat similar to the trout lily or to some of the orchids. We transplanted the little plant and found that it had a bulb about six inches beneath the ground. But it obviously isn't a lily or an orchid or a dayflower or an onion or garlic. It isn't Nemastylis acuta or a blue-eyed grass. Perhaps it is a garden escape, but at any rate a description is going along to Bill Bauer at Botany Hill and so it won't remain a mystery much longer.

BY A STROKE OF LUCK and a bit of hard work, we finished sowing the oats last week, late by some standards but generally early enough when you're going to mow them for hay. Then on a warm day we brought the eow herd in and sprayed them against early files and the crop of mites or other small parasites which seem an inevitable accompaniment of winter. This is the time of year when cattle get just enough green picking so they no longer relish their hay and when cows with calves especially are in need of a good lush pasture to step up the milk flow. So after some careful figuring, we turned them out on a patch of barley where they'll do well until the grass is a couple of inches higher.

The garden will go in this week; it always has to

The garden will go in this week; it always has to wait on the field crops and livestock. But our experience is that vegetables planted after the ground warms up soon overtake the seeds which have slept in the cold, wet soil—except for peas which seem to enjoy a freeze or two. At any rate, these chores have caused us to neglect the botanizing and bird-watching shamefully; for the wildflowers are in full bloom and the spring migration is on in full force.

A Lot of Things You Can Do With Ham

Here's How to Slice It Properly, and to Make Leftovers a Treat

By Hoyt Alden

MosT women don't even know how to slice a ham, let alone cook one. I know one in particular who can make a ham look like a lumberjack had chopped it down with a dull ax.

dull ax.

She starts out all right cutting straight down to the bone and around. But after a slice or two the slices begin to curve and slant, so that by the time the ham is half gone it is being sliced with the bone instead of against, and in a wide curve which gives it an interesting, if not very appetizing appearance.

While we're at it, we may as well get straight on the matter. Of course it's taken for granted that all unen are expert carvers, but they might like a refresher that all men are expert carvers, but they might like a refresher course.

Place a baked ham on a platter with the fat side up. The shank end should be to your left. If it is a right ham, you will find the thin side nearer you. The procedure is about the same for both left and right hams. The first thing to do with a right ham is make a couple of slices on the thin side, parallel to the bone. This is to give the joint a flat foundation. Now stand the ham on the flat base and go to work.

Be sure your carving fork is firmly embedded. Hams have been known to slip and land in someone's lap. Now earve a small, wedge-shaped section from near the shank end. This gives you an opening from which you start carving slices along the length of the leg bone and perpendicular—to it. You can keep on making these slices until you reach that part of the ham known as the aitch bone. Detach the slices by cutting along the leg bone. To carve additional slices, simply turn the ham back to its original position, on its side, and repeat the process. These slices will be smaller, but just as good.

MANY is the man, woman and child who suffers from allergy unknowingly. True enough, the discomforting symptoms are present but the patients often attribute them to other conditions.

A man goes to his eye doctor because his eyelids are inflamed all year around. He says: "Doctor, my eyes feel like two burned holes in a blanket. I must have a chronic infection of some kind." The eye specialist, finding no cause for his troubles in the eyes, sends him to an allergist. The report comes back that it is an allergic condition due to dog hair. The patient heavy-heartedly parts with his dog and within a month his eyes are less inflamed.

and it's hot clear through.

Of COURSE there's always some left-over ham. If you don't want to cook it with green beans or black-eyed peas, try this old Italian dish:

Put a cup of meat stock or consomme in a pan and add a cup of finely chopped green pepper. Let it boil for about five minutes. Then add this mixture to two cups of boiled rice, then add two cups of canned tomato. Complete it with a teaspoon of grated onion. Bring this to a boil, mix it well, and then toss in a cupful of that diced ham. It's a delicious dish, but bear in mind that it should not be watery. Moist, but not watery. Cook it down until it's just right. Season it with a dash of Worcestershire and salt and pepper to taste and then put a little hunk of butter on each serving.

put a little hunk of butter on each serving.

If YOU have another half cup or so of left-over chopped ham, try this some Sunday morning. Hardboil eight eggs and cut them in half lengthwise. Mash the yolks and mix them with a fourth of a cup of melted butter, a half cup of finely chopped ham, a pinch of dry mustard, a teaspoon of grated onion and a dash of Worcestershire.

Stuff the whites with this and put them in a baking dish. If the mixture is too dry, add more butter. Now make a cream sauce using a cup of hot milk, three-fourths of a cup of cream, three tablespoons of butter and four tablespoons of flour.

When it's smooth and begins to thicken, pour it over the eggs, sprinkle it all with salt and pepper and a little Parmesan cheese and bake it for half an hour.

We get a lot of inquiries not only about how to bake a ham, but how long a ham should bake. Well, regarding the latter, if you have a ham that weighs six to eight pounds it should bake at a temperature of 325 degrees, and it should bake 25 minutes to the pound; the internal temperature, if you use a meat thermometer, should be 155 degrees.

My Neighbor Says:

Slice cupcakes in half crosswise and fill with chocolate fudge frosting. (Use packaged mixes for both the cake and the frosting, if you want to save time.) Top the filled cakes with whipped cream and dot with bits of semi-sweet chocolate. Serve this double-chocolate dessert with plates and forks!

A questionnaire was sent to 40,000 high-school students asking them to tell what question they thought important in applying for work. Instead of asking, "How can I get a job that will bring out my abilities and give ane a chance for improvement and progress?", a discouraging proportion asked, "How soon will I get more money?" NEW BREAD is advertised in my morning journal. A A bread so full of vim and vigor, protein, niacin, vit-amins you need no fishball to go with it. As a matter of fact, it sounds to me like you could put this bread in the gas tank. And possibly get better mileage. The baker does not offer this yet. This bread is offered to keep you full of bread and still not put a sag over the pistol pock-Nor a bulge on the brisket. In a word, this bread is supposed to keep you thin. However, no baker with a speck of pride is going to introduce a bread of such caliber in a word. I have been reading all the words about this bread and am impressed. It looks like about 900 words at a printer's rough estimate. That is 300 more words than I am allowed for a column. I hope I can do it justice.

THE FAMILIAR POETS made 67 poems about bread. I mention this because poets only take up subjects that are popular. For instance, the poets have only written two poems to beaver hats. And a scant 14 noems to beer.

STAN DELAPLANE

This proves bread is a solemn subject. And when you start baking it to keep the populace slim as a French bread stick, it is worth looking at. The most popular poem was written by Omar Khayyam, who sandwiched his bread with verses, wine and thou Thus getting himself quoted by thousands of moon-struck

"If the people have no bread, let them eat cake," said Marie Antoinette, who was such a great kidder she lost her head over it.

The real joke of this is that Marie did not say "cake." She said "brioche." So I think the point has been missed. Brioche is a tasteless piece of fluff they bring to your room in French hotels. Along with the watery coffee.

It bears no relation to cake. And none at all to bread to my mind. Anybody on a diet of brioche would not only get slim, they might even starve to death.

So it may be that Marie was actually plumping for a * * *

ANYWAY, THIS IS NOT what I started out to say. What I started out to say was that the slimming bread bakers say you should eat two slices of this bread before meals. "To more effectively appease the appetite control center of the brain.

We will skip the infinitive split. This being no time to What occurs to me is that this gives the whole younger generation an edge on between-meals eating. A controversy that rages in most households. I used to be on one side of it. And now, strange to say, I find myself on the other.

When I took the affirmative in my salad days, I used to more effectively appease my appetite control centers with bread and butter and brown sugar. (My appetite control center at that time was not in my brain but in my stomach. However, I controlled it just as well.) My family took a low view of this.

"You won't eat any dinner," they said. "Stop eating between meals."

* * * NOW I FIND MYSELF using the same argument when my own ravenous child comes out of the kitchen. With innocent eye and a face spread with jelly.

"Child, if you don't stop eating between meals, you won't eat any dinner," I say.

And now comes along this baker to spread in 900 glowing words that that's the whole idea. Don't eat any dinner. All illustrated with pictures showing that all pretty models don't eat dinner. Just this new bread.

And it leaves me without a slice of argument.

Senator Ross of Kansas in 'Most Heroic Act in American History' Blocked Johnson Impeachment

By Senator John F. Kennedy

This is the fifth article in a series from the best-selling book "Profiles in Courage," written by United States Sen-ator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, and published by Harper and Brothers.

In a lonely grave lies "the man who saved a President," and who as a result may well have preserved for ourselves and posterity constitutional government in the United States. He performed in 1868 what one historian has called "the most heroic act in American history, incomparably more difficult than any deed of valor upon the field of battle." He was a United States Senator whose name no one recalls: Edmund G. Ross of Kansas.

The impeachment of President Andrew Johnson, the event in which the obscure Ross was to be a supersection of the sevent in which the obscure Ross was to be a supersection of the sevent in the sevent i

The impeachment of President Andrew Johnson, the event in which the obscure Ross was to play such a dramatic role, was the sensational climax to the bitter struggle between the President, determined to carry out Abraham Lincoln's policies of reconciliation with the defeated South, and the more radical Republican leaders in Congress, who sought to administer the downtrodden Southern states as conquered provinces. It was, moreover, a struggle between executive and legislative authority.

Andrew Johnson, the courageous if untactful Tennessean who had been the only Southern member of Congress to refuse to secede with his state, had committed himself to the policies of the Great Emancipator to whose high station he had succeeded only by the course of an assassin's bullet.

By 1866, when Ross first came to the Senate, the two branches of the Government were already at each other's throats. The "radical" Republicans realized that one final step was necessary before they could crush Johnson, their despised foe.

A two-thirds majority was constitutionally required to accomplish their major ambition, now an ill-kept secret, conviction of the President under an interest-best execution of now an ill-kept secret, convic-tion of the President under an impeachment and his dismissal from office.

from office.

The temporary and unstable two-thirds majority which had enabled the Senate radical Republicans on several occasions to enact legislation over the President's veto was, they knew, insufficiently reliable for an impeachment conviction. Then an unexpected tragedy brought fresh hopes in Kansas. Senator Jim Lane of Kansas had been a "conservative" Republican sympathetic to Johnson. But his frontier state was one of the most "radical" in the Union. A mass meeting at Lawrence reported resolutions sharply condemning his position. Humiliated, mentally alling, broken in health and laboring under charges of financial irregulation.

ing, broken in health and laboring under charges of financial irregularities, Lane took his own life on July 1, 1866.

The radical Republicans' fondest hopes were realized, for the new Senator from Kansas turned out to be Edmund G. Ross, the very man who had introduced the resolutions attacking Lane at Lawrence. Therecould be no doubt as to where Ross's sympathies lay, for his entire career was one of determined opposition to the slave states of the South.

The stage was now set for the final scene—the removal of Johnson. Early in 1867, Congress enacted over the President's veto the tenure-of-office bill which prevented the President from removing without the consent of the Senate all new dent from removing without the consent of the Senate all new consent of the Senate all new officeholders whose appointment required confirmation by that body. At the time nothing more than the cry for more patronage was involved, Cabinet members having originally been specifically exempt.

On Aug. 5, 1867, President Johnson—convinced that Edwin M. Stanton, the Secretary of War whom he had inherited from Lincoln, was the surreptitious tool of the radical Repubtious tool of the radical Repub-licans and was seeking to be-come the dictator of the con-quered South—asked for his resignation. Stanton arrogantly declined to resign before the next meeting of Congress. The President suspended Stanton, and appointed in his place Gen. Grant. On Jan. 13, 1868, an angry Senate notified the Presi-dent and Grant that it did not concur in the suspension of Stanton.

President Johnson, anxious to obtain a court test of the act he believed unconstitutional, again notified Stanton that he had been supported by the stanton of the stanton that he had been supported by the stanton that he had been notified Stanton that he had been summarily removed from the office of Secretary of War. Stanton barricaded himself in his office and public opinion ran heavily against the Presi-dent. He had, his opponents claimed, intentionally broken the law and dictatorially thwarted the will of Congress. Although previous resolutions thwarted the will of Congress. Although previous resolutions of impeachment had been defeated in the House, a new resolution was swiftly reported on Feb. 24, by a tremendous vote. Every Republican voted in the affirmative.

Every Republican voted in the affirmative.

W ITH the President impeached—in effect, indicted—by the House, the frenzied trial under the tricles of impeachment began on March 5 in the Senate, presided over by the Chief Justice. It ranked with all the great trials of history—Charles I before the High Court of Justice, Louis XVI before the French Convention, and Warren Hastings before the House of Lords. Only two great elements of drama were missing: the actual cause for which the President was being tried was not fundamental to the welfare of the nation; and the defendant himself was at all times absent. Some 1000 tickets were printed for admission to the Senate galleries during the trial. From March 5 to May 16, the drama continued. Of the 11 articles of impeachment adopted by the House, the first eight were based upon the removal of Thirty-six votes were required to constitute the two-thirds majority necessary for conviction. All 12 Democratic votes were obviously lost, and the 42 Republicans knew that they could afford to lose only six of their own members if Johnson were to be ousted. To their dismay, at a preliminary caucus, six courageous Republicans indicated that the evidence was not in their opinion sufficient to convict Johnson.

But if the remaining 36 Republicans would hold, there would be no doubt as to the outcome. One Republican Senator would not announce his verdict in the preliminary poll—E. G. Ross of Kansas.

When the impeachment resolution had passed the House, Ross had casually remarked to a colleague: "So far as I am concerned, though a Republican and opposed to Mr. Johnson and his policy, he shall have as fair a trial as an accused man ever had on this earth."

Ross and his doubtful fellow Republicans were daily subjected to every form of pressure. Ten minutes before the vote on fateful May 16 was taken, his Kansas colleague warned Ross that a vote for acquittal would mean trumped up charges and his political death.

The voting tensely commenced. By the time the Chief Justice reached the name of Edmund Ross 24 "guilties" had been pronounced. Ten more were certain and one other practically certain. Only Ross's vote was needed to convict the President. The hopes and fears, hatred and bitterness of past decades were centered on this

S Ross himself later described it: "Every fan was folded, not a foot moved, not the rustle of a garment, not a whisper was heard. . . . Hope and fear seemed blended in every face, instantaneously alternating, some with vengeful hate . . . others lighted with hope . . . I almost literally looked down into my open grave. Ross, United States Senator from Kansas, sold himself, and betrayed his constituents; stultified his own record, basely lied to his friends, shamefully violated his solemn shamefully violated his solemn pledge."

Ross clung unhappily to his seat in the Senate until the expiration of his term, frequently referred to as "the traitor" and complaining that his fellow Congressmen, as well as citizens on the street, considered association with him "disreputable and scandalous," and passed him by as if he were "a leper, with averted face and every indication of hatred and disgust." Neither Ross nor any other

Neither Ross nor any other Republican who had voted for the acquittal of Johnson was ever re-elected to the Senate. When Ross returned to Kansas in 1871, he and his family surfered social ostracism, physical attack, and near poverty.

Who was Edmund G. Ross? Practically nobody. Not a single public law bears his name, not a single history book includes his picture, not a single list of Senate "greats" mentions his service. His one heroic deed has been all but forgotten. Yet the twisting course of human events eventually upheld the faith he expressed to his wife shortly after the trial: "Millions of men cursing me today will bless me tomorrow for having saved the country from the greatest peril through which it has ever passed, though none but God can ever know the struggle it has cost me." For 20 years later Congress repealed the tenure-of-office act, and still later the Supreme Court held it to be unconstitutional. Ross moved to New Mexico, where in his later years he was to be appointed territorial governor. Just prior to his death when he was awarded a special pension by Congress for his service in the Civil War, the press and the country took the opportunity to pay tribute to his fidelity to principle in a trying hour.

The Kansas newspapers and political leaders who had bitterly denounced him in earlier years praised Ross for his stand against legislative mob rule. "By the firmness and courage of Senator Ross," it was said, "the country was saved from calamity greater than war, while it consigned him to a political martyrdom, the most cruel in our history." not only is the past president telephoning me almost every day to tell me what to do but I have heard from other sources that she is talking behind my back about how inefficient I am and stirring up trouble. Martha, why is it that all women's organizations seem to degenerate into gossiping, almost cruel and the ex-president insisted so I agreed. Now, aged I want to give up but my husband tells me that would be running away. Please help me.

Your husband is right, but I can't say I blame you for wanting to wash your hands of the whole affair. But remember that those same women's organizations—too often run by meddling, jealous people—need leaders like you who want to rise above personalities and direct the affairs of the organization on an objective, impersonal and business-like level. Don't be tempted to leave that high level and fall into the petty pattern that seems to attract the others. If you're careful never to criticize any member you can't be quoted. Accept the former president's suggestions pleasantly, consider them seriously, then use your own judgment and let the chips fall where they may. Gradually, I believe, you'll draw around yourself a nucleus of thoughtful, kind members who may be able to change the thought of the entire group.

Dear Martha:

WHY CAN'T SISTERS-IN-LAW MIND their own business? Recently my husband was ill and I took a part-time job to help pay the bills. My sister-in-law looks after the little ones for me, but the minute I get home my phone starts ringing and she wants me to go to the movies downtown or just any place to get me away from my husband and children. She also tells me how to spend my money. Now, Martha, I appreciate what she does for me but I also love my home, husband and children. What would JUST PLAIN DISGUSTED.

She's not running your life, and the earlier you can make it plain that you must make your own decisions, the better it will be. But what is her purpose? Maybe she feels that you need a little relaxation since you work during the day. Tell her you'd rather stay at home with your family since you love to be there, and she'll stop bothering you. As to her advice on spending money, thank her and promise to consider her suggestions, but do what you think is best. * * *

IN ANSWER TO Billie Jean: The daughter of divorced parents always faces an awkward situation in planning her wedding, especially if she has remained on good terms with both parents and wants both to participate in the wedding. Usually, when the daughter lives with the mother, the latter issues the invitations, or if she lives with her father, he issues the invitations. In some cases, the mother has given the church wedding and the father the recep-tion. Both issue separate invitations.

Husband's Mood

By Ruth Millett

T is foolish for a woman to dismiss her husband's irri-tability, restlessness or preoccupation without trying to ind out its cause. If she looks for the reason behind his behavior she may discover that he is worried about money. If he is, then it should be her worry, too.

RUTH MILLETT to take a little time off fishing trip or some other kind of diversion she knows he would enjoy. She may find out that he feels like a failure because he isn't advancing in his work. A wife can often help by letting her husband know she is with him if he wants to make a change. Some men stick in dead-end jobs for years ecause they are afraid to let go of a sure thing.

She may find out that her husband feels frustrated because he can't give her all the things she wants or as much as her friends seem to have. Without realizing what she is doing to her husband, a wife can make her husband feel like a miserable failure, through her envy of others. He may be worried about his health. A needs a push from his wife to get to a doctor's office for a physical examination or for care of a condition he knows exists but about which he has done nothing. It isn't wise for a wife to lightly dismiss a man's moods if they last longer than a day or two. A wise wife tries to find out what is behind them.

Occasionally when the new owners do not give a party, and it is known that everything is reasonably in order, intimate friends get together and give them a surprise party. In this case they all agree to meet at some place nearby and arrive together. And, of course, they bring the refreshments with them. The important thing to remember is to make a plan either to keep the new owners at home by

Fresh Summery Appearance

By Elizabeth Hillyer

KNOWING ABOUT THE SPECIAL PAINTS AND HOW TO USE THEM CAN MAKE A BIG DIFFERENCE.

LEARN your way around a paint store and everything summery can bloom in fresh color, the old canvas furniture as well as the metal furniture, the awnings and umbrellas, the fiber rugs, even the concrete porch of patio floor. It's all in knowing about special paints and how to use them.

Nearly all metal furniture is Nearly all metal furniture is reclaimable if it keeps its shape, even when it's crusty with rust, but it must be smoothed with steel wool then treated to paint remover and then rust remover, if rust is a problem. Penetrating if rust is a problem. Penetrating rust remover to prevent rust from forming again should follow. Mix it with metal primer—½ pint to one gallon—and the primer can be ready-mixed red lead. Use two coats of enamel made for outdoor use, the first slightly lighter than the second so you can be sure awnings and canvas umbrellas must be painted with paint that's special for the purpose—other paint cracks and peels. Canvas paint has a wax base which makes the fabric pliable and helps to prevent mildew. If the old color is renewed, one coat is usually enough, but two coats of the paint are necessary to change a color.

And it's a good idea to apply to change a color.

And it's a good idea to apply a final coat of clear canvas overcoating after the paint is dry to make sure the color on furniture won't rub off. The smoothest finish comes with dampening the canvas before painting, and the most thorough job is done with a brush rather than a spray gun.

FIBER RUGS, too, require their special paint to renew or –The Dean Speaks Up– one coat and a clear finish coat is also wise.

For the concrete floors of porches, patios, and terraces, the special concrete paint can be applied by a long handled floor brush. The newest paint of this kind requires no advance preparation coating of the floor surfaces and is fast drying—it's said to dry in 20 minutes.

JESUS ADVISED his disciples

JESUS ADVISED his disciples to part with a hand or a foot or an eye, rather than to risk a failure to enter the kingdom. That is an effective answer to the argument that we must realize all our potentialities, follow the law of our nature wherever it leads. He thought it was better to be crippled or blind than to miss the kingdom. In modern jargon it is better nind than to miss the kingdom. In modern jargon it is better to risk frustrations or inhibitions rather than to be shut out of the kingdom.

The kingdom is very costly for God Himself. In order to bring it about, He gives His Son.

bring it about, He gives His Son.

It is right at hand, said Jesus about 2000 years ago. There is a note of urgency in His preaching: repent, believe, for the kingdom is at hand. It is not far off in time and space. It is here. That is what He said about it.

Who will enter the kingdom?

Who will enter the kingdom? Who are its citizens? Those are the next questions to be considered.

Proper Care Of Teeth Important

By Josephine Lowman

KEEPING our teeth in good condition is of the greatest importance to us from the standpoint of comfort, good looks and good nutrition. It's important, money-wise, too.

Since tooth decay usually begins early in life the child should be taken to the dentist not later than the third year, and from then on as the dentist advises. Grownups who hope to keep their teeth should make an appointment at least twice a year. In some cases every three months is better.

IN THIS WAY the decay will be discovered before it has decreased the cost the same control of the same control of the same control of the same cases.

IN THIS WAY the decay will be discovered before it has damaged the tooth greatly. The dentist also will probably clean the teeth, removing all foreign material from the surfaces and polishing them. He probably will take X-rays to discover any hidden cavities in the early stages. This kixi of care pays off.

off.
So, already we have habits which will help save your teeth; regular visits to your dentist and the habit of brushing the teeth right after eating. Do you brush yours correctly or just brush yours correctly or just give them a little sweep with the brush?

give them a little sweep with the brush?

THE BRUSH should have firm bristles and should be small enough to reach all of the surfaces of the teeth. The most usual method of brushing is away from the gums, with a downward motion on the upper teeth and an upward motion on the lower teeth. Use a scrubbing motion on the grinding surfaces.

Even careful brushing will not reach the crevices between the teeth. Dental floss or dental tape will enable you to cleanse these portions of the teeth. The trick to successful use of floss or tape is the manner in which you hold it. Draw out about 18 inches of floss. Then twist it around the forefingers of each hand two or three times, leaving the thumbs free. You can use the thumb to guide the floss between the upper teeth, and the middle fingers to guide it between the lower teeth.

Be careful not to cut the gums. Work the floss through tight places gently with an easy back and forth motion.

A T every minute of the day or night somebody is praying, "Thy kingdom come" as Jesus taught his disciples to do. Mare Boegner has asid that Jesus must have believed that the kingdom would come. He would never have deceived his disciples, set them to praying for the impossible.

Adele Starbird What is this kingdom? Does it refer to god or to the territory over which He rules? Does it refer to earth as well as to heaven, to the present or to the future, to the Then and Yonder or to the Here and Now?

We are just emerging from a period when the kingdom of SOMETIMES JESUS speaks of the kingdom as a principle of growth, a process. It is like the yeast which silently brings the dough to rise, it is like the tiny mustard seed which grows to a great height, it is like the seed which is dependent upon good soil, it is like a field where wheat and weeds are allowed to grow together, or a net full of fish, some good, some bad.

No one of these comparisons is intended as a complete description of the kingdom; each of them illustrates some aspect, or some truth concerning it.

Jesus says also that the kingdom of heaven is very costly, both to man and to God. It has never been obtained at a bargain. It is like a treasure hid in a field, for which a man gives all that he has, It is a single perfect pearl which a man purchases at a great price, having sold everything he owned. (Gerald Heard observes Here and Now?

We are just emerging from a period when the kingdom of God was equated with a perfect social order here on earth. It was thought that when he had produced Utopia—economically, politically, socially—when all men enjoyed physical wellbeing, a good environment and education, then the kingdom of God would come automatically. ## WHRLPOO

New 2-speed RCA WHIRLPOOL does your regular wash, your delicate fabrics, too-all in one automatic washer!

Only the makers of RCA WHIRLPOOL give you 2 different agitator speeds, 2 adjustable time cycles 2 separate spin speeds!

BIG NEWS!

No more hand laundering-no more ruined clothes.

Now the same automatic washer that makes towels, sheets and blue jeans so clean-with RCA WHIRLPOOL'S famous agitator action & 68 strokes per minute)-does your hand laundry, too.

Just flick the dial for delicate fabrics. Automatically, you get slower, gentler action (45 agitator strokes per minute), a separate adjustable time cycle (1 to 4 minutes), even a slowed-down gentle spin speed at 335 R.P.M.

That means you can now wash automatically the lace curtains, filmy lingerie, all the delicate fabrics, synthetics, and blends you've been afraid to wash except by hand.

BIG FEATURES!

You also get all these new improvements, too:

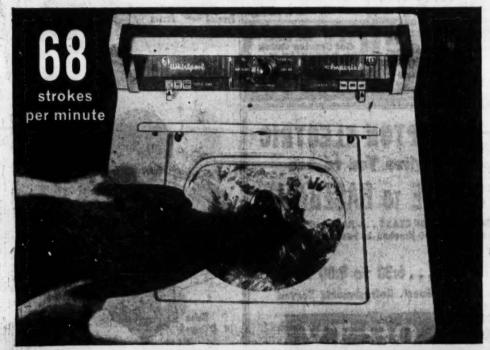

- · Famous SUDS-MISER to save hot water and detergent;
- 3 water temperatures;
- 3 water levels;
- RCA WHIRLPOOL'S seven rinses to eliminate sand, soil, soap-scum;
- · Germicidal ultra-violet lamp;
- 5-year warranty on sealed transmission.

Come in. See the new RCA WHIRLPOOL, and let us tell you about the low down payment, easiest terms.

See RCA WHIRLPOOL on the Milton Berle-Martha Raye Shows on Tuesday, NBC-TV.

Just set the dial for regular fabrics (68 agitator strokes per minute). Automatically, you get thorough washing action, 7 rinses, safe 500 R.P.M. spin speed.

Set the dial for delicate fabrics (45 agitator strokes per minute). Automatically, you get slower, gentler action, 4 rinses, slowed-down spin at 335 R.P.M.

HENRY—By Carl Anderson

The present time we have constant effort in all good courts to promote the cause of justice. A man has the right to ask a lawyer to defend him against any charge which is brought to court.

If the prisoner desires a trial by jury, this can be done. In the past it was common to speak of a jury as being made up of "12 good men and true," but that hardly applies at the present time. A modern jury often is made up of women as well as men.

dle Ages in Europe, the people were without any sort of trial by jury. Instead there was an effort to find out whether a person was guilty by making him go through an ordeal.

The ordeal was a form of torture. A prisoner might be ordered to put his hand in a fire for a short time. If he drew his hand back within a split second, he might escape

A small air pump such as is sold for inflating footballs and similar equipment is a fine-thing for blowing sawdust and dirt out of hard to git at corners, before applying the new finish to the wood.

Excess Paint Never remove the excess paint from a brush by wiping the brush on the rim of the paint container for this allows the paint to run down the out-side of the container and make a mess of things. The way to get excess paint off the brush without mess is to pat the brush against the inside surface of the paint container.
